POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Giants and Cubs will play to-morrow. This was finally decided just before to-day's game by a conference between President Brush and Manager McGraw. While both feel extremely sore over the adverse decision, still as long as the game is ordered to be played Brush thought it best to conform to the rules and save further trouble and complications.

Mr. Brush said that all of the affidavits that the New York Club presented to the board of directors were ignored with one exception, and that one was in favor of the Cubs. It looked like a prearranged verdict and the New York Club got the worst of it. Mr. Brush also said that he would not take any legal measures to prevent the world series in case the Giants lose out and never said that he would.

McGraw said "Well, I suppose we will have to stand for the robbery, but it was a New York victory of September 23 nevertheless. We will win to-day's game and beat the Cubs to-morrow."

The game was not started at 2 o'clock as announced, the danger of rain being very evident at that hour.

Mathewson begged McGraw to pitch him in both to-day's and to-morrow's games. Matty said "Don't take any chances to-day. I'll win both games sure as you are born."

Instead of clearing the baseball atmosphere, the decision of the National League Board of Directors that the disputed game must be played off between the Giants and Cubs has stirred up a lively row among the clubs involved.

President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgs flatly declared he will protest the decision, as he sees no sense or fairness in the ruling. His team disbanded immediately after the game with the Cubs on Sunday, and the players have scattered to their homes, not realizing that the decision of the board of directors might bring about a triple tie for the National League pennant.

Manager Chance of the Chicagos, while obeying the ruling of the board of directors by gathering his team and starting for New York to play off that disputed game, accuses President Ebbets of the Brooklyn club of favoring the Giants, inasmuch as he had declared he wanted New York to win the pennant.

In the meantime the Chicago Cubs are on their way to New York to play off the tie game. The question is: Will the four days' lay-off they have enjoyed lessen their chances against the New Yorks, or will he rest have done them good?

If New York is defeated by the Doves this afternoon, they must win the disputed game from the Cubs in order to tie Chance's men for the pennant. If this state of things should come about—that is New York lose to Boston to-day and win from Chicago to-morrow—there would be a triple tie between New York, Chicago and Pittsburg that would have to be dissolved before the winner of the National League pennant be determined.

While the National League teams are deciding the questions as best they can the Detroit Tigers are waiting to see which team will be the opponents of the American League champions in the world's championship series. By winning from the Chicago White Sox yesterday the Tigers captured the American League flag for the second time in succession.

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, Oct. 7.—With skies threatening rain and with the pertinent fact before them that the Lewiston boys had scored on them for two years past, the Harvard football team entered the Stadium for their contest with Bates in no very cheerful frame of mind, but with the feeling that somehow they would squeeze out a victory. Last year Bates was defeated by the Crimson with a score of 33 to 4, and last Saturday Brown [illegible] the Lewiston outfit by a score of 35 to 4.

Bates [illegible] being a light team accustomed to play a fast open game, but not ready to stand the hard gruelling that the Crimson planned to inflict on them.

Cobb, the Bates quarterback, who can kick like a streak, bobbed up serene in the line-up and the Crimson gave him a good deal of attention.

The feature of the Harvard line-up was the appearance of Fish at his old place at right tackle. Fish returned to the practices late and the coaches did not think it advisable to let him play until to-day. Vogel started the game at fullback in place of Kennard.

STEFFENS TO PROBE CITY HALL GRAFT

Lincoln Steffens, the well-known journalist and municipal reformer, is in Boston to "write up" the alleged graft and bossism in the city government. Mr. Steffens is here for an indefinite stay. He has hired and furnished a house on West Cedar street and expects to be here until next Fall.

LOST HIS FINGERS; SUES BLEACHERY

The Waltham Bleachery and Dye Works have been sued for $10,000 by John Lowery of Waltham, a minor, who claims that he lost several fingers by having his right hand crushed in a tinting machine in the defendant's plant.

LYNN STRIKE CLOSES CAUNT SHOE FACTORY

1,800 Workers Thrown Out of Work at That Shop—50 at Another.

LYNN, Oct. 7.—Joseph Caunt, at whose shoe factories here the present great lasters' strike arose over a week ago, at noon to-day notified his employes that the entire plant would be closed to-night indefinitely. This throws at least 1,800 shoe workers out of employment. At the factory of Thomas Corcoran the stitching room, where fifty girls are employed, is to shut down to-night.

In Lynn to-day at least 1,000 girl shoe stitchers are out of work and about 2,800 shoe workers are idle as a result of the strike.

To-morrow Mayor Thomas F. Porter will meet the shoe manufacturers of the city, the leaders of the lasters' strike and President Bauer of the Lynn Board of Trade, when an effort will be made to arrange terms between manufacturers and men whereby all the factories with the exception of the Caunt place may resume work.

NOTED DOCTORS ENTERTAINED

Delegates to the International Congress on Tuberculosis, which has just been held in Washington, D. C., who are visiting in Boston, were entertained by the city of Boston at breakfast at the City Club to-day.

Dr. E. O. Otis, chairman of the entertainment committee, and Edward F. McSweeney, president and chairman of the trustees of the Consumptives' Hospital, described the work being done in Boston to prevent the spread of the great white plague. Dr. Unterberger, physician to the Czar of Russia, spoke in behalf of the delegates. Acting Mayor Louis M. Clark of the Board of Aldermen, and James C. White, Mayor Hibbard's secretary, represented Boston at the breakfast.

Among others at the function were more than forty prominent physicians and educators. The [illegible] number about thirty and are all distinguished specialists. They attended a "smoker" at the Boston Medical Library in the Fenway last evening. It was given in their honor by Dr. James J. Minor.

$12,000 FOR BRYAN TO EDIT NEWSPAPER

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 7.—Fred H. Bonfils, proprietor of the Denver Post and of the Sells Floto Circus, while here to-day said that just before the last nomination of William J. Bryan for the presidency he offered him $12,000 a year to edit his paper. Bonfils says Bryan at that time tentatively refused the offer, but that he will renew it if Bryan is defeated in November.

FORBID DUMPING ON DORCHESTER LOTS

As the result of the protest from the Dorchester residents who live in the vicinity of Norfolk street, the Board of Health to-day ordered several contractors to stop dumping garbage in vacant lots in Norfolk street at once.

Issues Statement Declaring Annexation of Balkan Provinces Is of No Concern to Other Nations.

VIENNA, Oct. 7.—The Austrian-Hungarian Foreign Office to-day boldly announced that neither her annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina nor Bulgaria's declaration of independence was a matter of concern to the other powers, and that she did not care whether the annexation was recognized or not, as it was an accomplished fact, and it could not be undone.

Servia's threatened invasion of Bosnia and Herzegovina is so imminent that Austria has begun the mobilization of two additional army corps to resist Servia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7.—The Council of Ministers has decided to protest through the Austrian Embassy here against the annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria-Hungary.

GREEK PRINCE IS REPORTED SLAIN

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 7.—Dispatches just received here apparently confirm the Constantinople rumor that Prince Constantine of Greece was assassinated while attending the Servian army manoeuvres. The city has been thrown into great excitement over the rumor.

Announcement that the island of Crete has been annexed to Greece is momentarily expected. The whole of southeastern Europe is in a tumult.

Prince Constantine is the eldest son of King George and has long been a popular idol of the Greeks.

He was born in 1868 and commanded the Greek army in the war with Turkey.

He was married in 1889 to Princess Sophia, a sister of the German Emperor. Three sons and one daughter blessed the union.

Prince Constantine always was an enthusiastic sportsman, and during the Olympic games at Athens he was a loyal supporter and comrade of the American athletes.

SERVIANS CRY WAR; ATTACK AUSTRIANS

BELGRADE, Oct. 7.—Clamoring wildly for war, mobs of Servians are making frantic efforts to-day to get to the Austrian Legation, from which troops with fixed bayonets beat them back during the night.

It is the index of the answer of the Servian people to the proclamation of Emperor Francis Joseph announcing to the world his complete annexation and sovereignty of the provinces of Herzegovina and Bosnia.

Servia wants war—the people, the masses of the population. King Peter and his Ministers are not over-anxious to get into a fight with their mighty neighbor, but in Servia the King usually does what his people want or they find a way of getting him to do it—or another King. With the fate of King Alexander and Draga, his Queen, fresh in his memory, Peter must have caution.

Last night the mobs appeared on the scene, wildly shrieking their barbaric war songs and dancing their mountain dances. Men and women alike from all directions rushed to the Austrian legation. Completely surprised, the small force of gendarmes was swept away. The Austrians in the legation called for protection, and a regiment was rushed double quick to the scene. Before they arrived, however, the mob had smashed every window in the legation building and was even then battering in the doors. The troops had to fight every inch of the way.

A strong guard was then mounted and, despite all this, the crowds kept close to the military lines. Through the streets students and professional men marched arm in arm, singing the national Servian hymn, while in the cafes and places of public assemblage the most intense spirit was manifested.

AUSTRIA READY FOR SERVIAN WAR

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Austria-Hungary has finally seized the provinces of Herzegovina and Bosnia and is prepared to defend its action by war if necessary.

Such is the interpretation by the powers of the proclamation of Emperor Francis Joseph of the extension of his sovereignty. For thirty years he has been suzerain of the two countries. He now boldly tells the world that it is no longer a question of the future of the countries—henceforth they will be ruled from Vienna. He concedes to them a constitution and a Diet of their own and makes fair promises that his action means a larger measure of liberty.

With a large majority of their population made up of Servians whose dream has been to one day be united with their countrymen of Servia in an independent kingdom, the Emperor's act has aroused Servia to a pitch of frenzy and all factions have united in a cry for war.

The newspapers of Belgrade are insistent that King Peter and his ministers act at once.

They have already called out the first class reservists and all arms of the service have been ordered to the colors. Officers absent on leave are hurrying home by every train.

The London newspapers unite in denouncing the action of the Austrian Kaiser. They liken his act to the partition of Poland, and the Standard regrets that he has seen fit to "sully his long and honorable career" in this way.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, Oct. 7.—It was the last championship day of the year, and the Red Sox wound up their season with a double-header, the Athletics being the opponents.

In spite of the gloomy weather, there was a good-sized crowd on hand. Friends of Ambrose McConnell, the little Red Sox second baseman, were out in force to see the presentation by Uncle Cy Young of the BOSTON AMERICAN loving cup, won by McConnell in the popular voting contest which closed on October 1.

Hundreds of friends of Michael Curley of the Roxbury Athletics, who won the BOSTON AMERICAN Cup for the most popular amateur player, also attended the game to witness the climax of their efforts in Curley's behalf. The two cups were identical in shape and size, the lettering only being different. They made a handsome appearance in the hands of "Uncle Cy" as he presented them to the winners after a brief speech.

"Uncle Cy" was billed to pitch one of the games of the double-header. The veteran pitcher has had one of his most successful seasons on the diamond, ranking well up with the best in the American League in spite of the fact that he had a second division team behind him. He bids fair to be in harness for many years to come. Next year the Red Sox ought to cut considerable ice in the American League, and Young's services will be all the more valuable.

The game between the Giants and Cubs to-morrow will be reproduced at the Huntington avenue grounds by an electric score board system. The world championship games will also be shown on the Huntington avenue grounds.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Nicholls hit a safe grounder past Wagner. E. Collins sacrificed, Cicotte to Stahl. Seybold hit to Stahl and Cicotte covered the bag for the out. Murphy went out the same way. NO RUNS.

When McConnell stepped to the plate, Cy Young walked out with the two loving cups, one for McConnell and one for Curley, the players gathered around and Cy presented the cups. Curley was present in uniform and received his trophy the same time McConnell got his.

Martin was wild at the start and passed McConnell and Lord in succession. Speaker forced Lord, Barry to Collins, McConnell going to third. Speaker stole second and on Powers's wild throw McConnell scored. Speaker tried to tally also, but was out at the plate, Murphy to Collins to Powers. Hoey fanned. ONE RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Davis struck out, but Donahue missed the third one and had to throw o Stahl. Oldring lined a single to right. When Barry came up to bat he was presented with a handsome diamond stud by a delegation of friends from Holy Cross College. He drove a long fly to Cravath. Powers fanned. NO RUNS.

Cravath walked. Wagner hit by pitched ball. Stahl singled to right, scoring Cravath and putting Wagner on third. Stahl stole second. Donahue fanned. Wagner scored, and Stahl took third on a wild pitch. Cicotte popped to Davis. McConnell singled to left, scoring Stahl. Mac stole second. Lord flied to Seybold. THREE RUNS.

ON SPREE, KILLS ENTIRE FAMILY

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 7.—J. W. Richardson, on a spree to-day, shot and killed his wife, her father, B. T. Cromwell, who had gone to protect his daughter, and her children, and then, after killing his horse, blew out his own brains.

FOUR MEN SUED ON EXTORTION CHARGE

Caetano Cafarello, Dominick Cafarello, Cassida Camora and Angelia Peccia, all of Watertown, have been sued for $5,000 damages by Tobio Inilo of Watertown, who claims that on October 14, 1904, he had a considerable sum of money in the bank, and that the defendants, knowing it, conspired to extort it from him under the threat of making a serious charge against him. He says that they did make the charge, and that he was indicted and acquitted. Now he wants damages for the expense he was put to and the injury done to his good name.

M'CARTNEY INDORSED BY UNION LABOR MEN

LEAGUE CANDIDATES ON STATE TICKET ARE WARMLY GREETED AT LYNN MEETING.

LYNN, Oct. 7.—Robert J. McCartney of Plymouth, the Independence League party's candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, was indorsed last night by a vote of the Iron Moulders' Union of Essex County, before which he spoke in the opening rally of the State campaign.

Mr. McCartney was hailed as a fellow union man. He holds a union card, having for years worked at the bench himself, and is now an employer of iron moulders himself. He was for eight years president of the New England Conference and for twelve years representative and correspondent of local union No. 103.

Hon. William N. Osgood of Lowell, the Independence League nominee for Governor, was a guest of the union and addressed the members. Both he and Mr. McCartney were greeted with great enthusiasm.

The motion to indorse Mr. McCartney's candidacy was made by Herbert E. Bryant of Plymouth, New England organizer and the third party's candidate for Presidential electors.

Alton E. Stone, president of the union, was empowered to appoint a committee of union members to arrange for meetings of union men in all the cities of New England and to request that all union men work for the success of the Independence platform and ticket.

Last night's meeting was held at the moulders' headquarters on Market street. President Soule and Secretary Walter E. Glidden presided, and the former introduced Mr. Osgood. Mr. Osgood explained the Independence party platform, outlining the planks dealing with referendum and the injunction, and then scored District Attorney Asa P. French for his failure to act on the information furnished by the Independence League concerning the merger of the Boston & Maine and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads.

Scores French on Merger.

"By his neglect to act on this information," declared Mr. Osgood, "Mr. French has shown utter contempt for the people's rights. There is no question now but that the merger has been carried out. It is reported that President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine has resigned and that his place is to be filled by Mr. Stevens of the New Haven road. Why did not Mr. French apply for an injunction to stop this merger? He would have been ready to do so had this been a labor dispute."

After discussing government ownership Mr. Osgood declared, "I became affiliated with the Independence League because it is the party of the people. It not only promises, but is bound to protect their rights. The Republican party's injunction plank treatment of the injunction shows that labor can not turn to that party for help. Labor can have no confidence in Bryan if for no other reason than his affiliation with Standard Oil."

Mr. McCartney was introduced by Mr. Bryant and after telling of his fight to win his way in the world, declared: "I was a Cleveland Democrat and later I was a Roosevelt supporter, but on the founding of the Independence League its principles so appealed to me that I at once joined its ranks. I was not satisfied to be a silent member and was eager to become an active worker in the interests of the party because I knew how it could help the people."

Mr. McCartney denounced corporation rule and scored District-Attorney French for nominating Louis A. Frothingham for Lieutenant-Governor. "Instead of acting upon the information furnished him by the Independence League regarding the merger of th Boston & Maine and the New Haven, Mr. French has now nominated for Lieutenant-Governor a friend of the corporations," he said.

Draper Barred Union Men.

Mr. McCartney turned his attention to Eben S. Draper, the Republican nominee for Governor, and said: "In 1903 Mr. Draper posted at his mills in Hopedale an announcement that moulders in his employ must quit the union or lose their places. Later, when he was running for Lieutenant-Governor, he met representatives of the iron moulders, and in the presence of a number of witnesses promised to withdraw his objections to moulders in his employ carrying union cards. He not only failed to keep that promise, but he has even denied he ever made it."

As a member of the iron moulders' union, Mr. McCartney urged the union to give its earnest support to the Independence League platform. After he had explained the purposes of the League, Herbert E. Bryant, in a brief speeech, appealed to every union man to do his utmost to help the new party and defeat the corporation-ruled old parties.

President Soule will appoint a committee from the union to extend the work in all the cities of New England. Union men will be requested to attend the meetings and to work actively for the success of the new party platform.

JURY DISAGREE IN HOTEL CASE

The jury in the liquor case of the Hotel Frontenac of Lowell reported a disagreement in the Superior Court at East Cambridge to-day. This is the second time that a jury has failed to agree in the Hotel Frontenac case and the second disagreement at this term of court in a Lowell hotel case, the Franklin Hotel case resulting in a disagreement last week.

Thirty-four cases are pending against Lowell hotels as a result of a Law and Order crusade a year ago. Convictions have been so difficult to secure that District Attorney Higgins to-day put over all the cases until the next term of court. The jury in the Frontenac case stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal.

NAVY SURGEON GETS DIVORCE

Dr. George H. Barber, a surgeon in the United States navy, who now has a home in Chelsea, Mass., has been granted a divorce from his wife, Belia Bemis Barber, on the grounds of separation for more than ten years. The decree was entered at Newport, R. I., upon the order of Judge Mumford.

Dr. Barber's plea for divorce states that he was married in 1895. In 1897 he claims that Mrs. Barber began to drink liquor. She went in 1898 on a visit to her mother and never returned, he declared.

Dr. Barber obtained a residence in Rhode Island by being ordered for service there in 1903 at his request.

Grace Cameron, Who on Wager Will Wear Sheath Gown in Street

DARES STAR TO WEAR SHEATH GOWN IN STREET

Just how far a woman will go in taking a "dare" has not yet been officially determined, but Grace Cameron, the original "Dolly Dimples," is going to set a fast pace—for she has been "dared" by a man, and she declares she will not take off her hat to anyone when it comes to doing "stunts."

As a result happenings on Tremont street are promised this afternoon, if the weather holds good and Miss Cameron's new style sheath gown holds together.

Childhood Stunts.

It happened this way: Miss Cameron, who is one of the features at the Orpheum this week, got into an argument with William Courtleigh on the stage last night as to the "stunts" which children do, the talk growing out of Miss Cameron's impersonation of a child on the stage.

"It's great fun," said she, "to do these 'stunts,' as we used to call them, but when we get older we're afraid to do them any more. I used to like to play 'Follow your leader,' and all those things, but nowadays people would drop dead if a grown-up should get kiddish like that."

"Oh, no," said Mr. Courtleigh. "Everyone is a kid, grown up. I'll bet they'd jus laugh and enjoy it."

Proposes a Dare.

Miss Cameron demurred at that, and then it was that Mr. Courtleigh said:

"Just for fun, I'll give you a stunt, and we'll see how brave you are. I dare you to wear your sheath gown on Tremont street."

Quicker than he expected came her reply.

"I'll bet you a new Fall derby to a box of gloves that I will. You can bet I was never 'dared' yet without making good. Consider yourself assessed, and I wear nine's."

The upshot of it all is that Miss Cameron now feels herself in honor bound to wear that eccentric sheath gown and her Merry Widow hat up Tremont street and she has set Wednesday afternoon as the time.

'MIMIC WORLD' AT FOOD FAIR

The ninety members of "The Mimic World" company will be guests at the Boston Food Fair in the Park Square Coliseum to-morrow afternoon. Gertrude Hoffman, the "Salome" of the aggregation at the Majestic; the Maxim girls in brand new gowns they have never worn before, and all the stars, near-stars and the whole merry chorus are to be the guests of the fair.

Gertrude Hoffman, the "Salome" dancer, is anxious to see Onaip, the Hindoo illusionist, and to witness his wonderful performance when he causes to rise from the stage and swing through space, apparently unsupported, a piano and musician. Miss Hoffman is a student of the occult, and this exhibition she is determined to see.

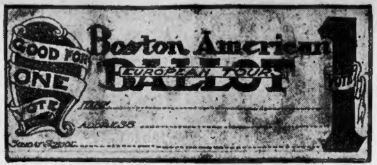
HYDROPHOBIA KILLS NEW JERSEY WOMAN

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 6.—After suffering from convulsions at intervals for two weeks, Mrs. Harvey Day of this city is dead of hydrophobia. Her husband, a woman neighbor and a mail carrier, who were bitten by the dog which caused Mrs. Day's death, are being carefully watched by physicians, fearful of the development of the symptoms of the disease.



CAUNT FAILS TO ATTEND STRIKE CONFERENCE

Settlement of Lynn Trouble Farther Away Than Ever; 500 More Shoe Men Out.

LYNN, Oct. 7.—The strike of the lasters in Lynn seems farther from a settlement to-day than ever. Joseph Caunt, at whose factory the trouble arose and where the first strike was declared, did not attend the conference between the State Board of Arbitration, the strike leaders, the Lynn Board of Trade and Mayor Thomas F. Porter.

The meeting was held in the Mayor's office. Caunt yesterday, at a preliminary conference, promised to attend. Instead, President R. S. Bauer of the Lynn Board of Trade read a letter from Mr. Caunt. The manufacturer said that he had a pressing business engagement. He asked the strike leaders to send their men back into the other factories, and intimated that he would then be ready to consider an adjustment of the wage scale with his own striking employes.

Mayor Porter and the other men who attended the conference are keenly disappointed. They had expected that the strike might to-day be settled or terms of settlement reached.

To-day the strikers' ranks were swelled by 500 more shoe workers who did not report at their factories. Now there are almost 2,000 shoe workers striking in Lynn.

The strikers to-day opened their free restaurant for the striking shoe workers in Lasters' Hall. It was well patronized.

In a statement Mr. Caunt declared that he was only too anxious to bring about a settlement of the general strike, provided that he or his firm can be blamed for existing conditions.

BIG DISPLAY AT FOOD FAIR BY SIEGEL CO.

Admittedly one of the most attractive features at the New England Food Fair is the elaborately decorated booth of the Henry Siegel Company, centrally located in the great hall in the Mechanics' building.

The complete and well arranged assortment of Hazel Pure Foods, for which the Siegel Company is the sole agent in New England, is the feature of the Henry Siegel booth at the fair. In addition to the splendid display of pure foods there is an exhibit of Hekla coffee, another fine product for which the Siegel Company is sole agent.

Almost half of the space of the exhibit is given up to the display of Lindsay lights and kitchen furnishings from the basement of the Siegel stores in Washington street.

The display of pure foods at the Siegel booth is admired by all of the thousands of visitors as they throng the exhibit. At once the completeness of the assortment attracts the attention. The Hazel Pure Foods include canned fruits, canned vegetables, jams and preserves.

The Hekla coffees and Hekla candies are one of the most interesting parts of the display to housewives. The Siegel Company is the sole agent for these. The coffee is ground and canned daily and the candy is made every day.

TWO ACCIDENTS ON AUTO TRACK

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Two accidents occurred to-day at the dangerous "S" turn on the Vanderbilt cup course near Jericho, L. I., during practice spins for the elimination trials next Saturday.

The Chalmers-Detroit entry, a forty-horse-power car driven by Lorimer, was going at high speed down the old Jericho turnpike when the auto burst out in flames. Lorimer stopped his car as quickly as he could and he and his mechanician leaped to the ground.

A half hour after the accident to the Chalmers-Detroit entry, Harry Tuttle, driving the big Stoddard-Dayton car, was spinning along the turnpike when the beading on the right rear tire gave away. The big racing machine skidded into the shrubbery and then turned over.

Tuttle was thrown out and his mechanician went over his head. Both men landed in the grass and neither was hurt.

FOG IN HARBOR; CLEAR OUTSIDE

The dense fog which has hung over the harbor to-day, greatly impeding navigation, is a land fog, the weather outside Boston Light being perfectly clear.

The Leyland liner Winifredian, which sailed at 7:30 a. m., was led down the harbor by a tug because of the dense fog.

The British steamship Saint Clinton, Captain Stabb, arrived from Buenos Ayres and other South American ports. Among the passengers was Oswald Donald, superintendent of the Cooper Construction Company of New York.

KNABENSHUE NEAR DEATH IN AIRSHIP TRIP

Assistant Hangs to Wire to Balance Machine High in Air.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Oct. 7.—Roy Knabenshue, the Toledo, O., aviator, had a narrow escape with his mechanic, George Duesler, from being dashed to bits on the streets of Pittsburg while making a trip over the city in his airship.

When about half a mile in the air, directly over the high Frick building, one of the wires of the second cylinder of his machine broke and the great airship became unmanageable.

About 100,000 people were by this time watching the airship and they wildly applauded the dippings and twistings of the great winged thing, thinking Knabenshue was giving them a free exhibition.

It was not until one of the two men in the basket was seen to creep like a fly over the edge of the basket and hang suspended from some invisible wire that the great crowd knew that there was anything wrong.

The human fly who was performing this remarkable feat in the air was Duesler, who made himself a human ballast, hanging to the broken wire to steady the plunging, somersaulting, dipping, runaway airship.

Hanging this way Duesler was carried much of the distance back to Schenley oval, three miles, where the ship was landed safely. Several times Duesler had to clamber back into the basket to rest, but he invariably was called out again to do the human ballast act. The mechanic saved not only his own life, but that of Knabenshue as well.

OFFICER LOST LIFE IN FIRE RESCUE WORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Policeman William Nestor of the Communipaw avenue station, Jersey City, a new man, less than a year on the force, to-day gave up his life in the rescue of three families from the building at No. 813 Ocean avenue after it had caught fire.

The fire started in the cellar beneath the grocery of Eckhoff and Sparnecht, and thick smoke poured upward through the building. Nestor, after rescuing those in danger, was himself overcome by this smoke and, in a dazed condition, wandered into a neighboring house, where he was later found dead on the floor by the firemen.

Patrolman Nestor discovered the blaze and after turning in an alarm went into the apartments of Louis Eckhoff. He aroused Eckhoff and carried out Mrs. Eckhoff and one child. Then Nestor went up to the second floor and got out Bernard Whitneyburg, his wife and two children. By that time the firemen had arrived, but Nestor suddenly disappeared.

It seems that Nestor must have gone into the neighboring house and climbing to the third floor aroused the family of Hugo Muller, whom he thought in danger. Then he must have been overcome by the smoke. He was dead when the firemen found him.

STRIKE QUICKLY WON AT EAST WEYMOUTH

QUINCY, Oct. 7.—There was a brief strike by laborers at the No. 8 shoe factory being built at East Weymouth for George E. Keith when the men heard that non-union workmen were on the job. It was agreed to make it a strictly union job, and the men went back to work.

HIBBARD SAYS HE HAS SAVED CITY $1,000,000

MAYOR TELLS NEW YORK EXPERTS HOW HE HAS ENDED FRAUD.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Mayor George A. Hibbard to-day told the Budget Conference of the Allied Real Estate interests of New York that during the first nine months of administration he estimated that he had saved the city of Boston more than $1,000,000 in city department expenses and contracts. He said he expected to save more before the fiscal year is over. He told how the city had paid exorbitant prices and carried idle employes on its payrolls. He praised the Finance Commission. He said:

"I am able to announce on the authority of the city auditor of Boston that during the first nine months of my administration I have been able to save a total of $736,302.34 in the expenses of city departments under my cotrol"

"He assures me the saving is to be materially increased before the end of my fiscal year.

"This is purely a budget saving. I have reason to believe the city has also saved $400,000 or more on contracts.

Fraud in Coal Stopped.

"When I took office I was short in resources, as compared with my predecessor, $500,000 in cash and found a legacy of $119,000 in department bills he had left me to pay. The State tax assessment on Boston was increased about $500,000 over the figure of the year before.

"Certain of the most important administrative and construction departments were in a state of general demoralization. In the words of one investigator 'anything that was black and would burn was being sold to the city for coal.'

"Large sums were being paid for the cleaning of catch basins which never existed. Flagstones and supplies were being unloaded at ideal prices for the selling parties.

"The practise of splitting contracts to avoid public competition also prevailed to give favored contractors a monopoly of municipal work at their own prices.

"The labor cost at the municipal printing plant had reached so high a figure that the departments were in open rebellion at the prices.

"At the municipal stone crushers the experts who made an investigation figured that it was costing $42 for every ton of crushed stone when $1.50 was a fair commercial figure.

Have to Work Now.

"This recklessness 'higher up' was, as might be expected, reflected directly by the rank and file of the laborers. Experts on the Boston Finance Commission—whose work has been of incalculable value to the city—computed that the 1907 $2.25 day with a Saturday half-holiday was yielding only one-fourth the results of 1878, a ten-hour day, with no half-holiday, at $1.75. This commission found that "men came late, or absented themselves from their work, were restive under discipline. As a result, the city was paying for labor which was not given. This commission also reported that "the foreman paid no attention to the engineer, and the laborer with political influence defied the foreman."

Mayor Hibbard told how he has removed officials and employes in the Health Department and saved $15,000 in salaries, and what he did in the same line in the Public Buildings, the Assessors', City Collector's, Street and Municipal Printing Departments. He said: "The effect of these reductions was at once noticeable, for the men remaining on the payrolls learned that their tenure of employment depended absolutely on their attention to duty.

"The hardest problem of all has been that relating to the old men in the sirvice. Boston is carrying on the rolls hundreds, partly or wholly incapacitated, and the question what to do with them is a most serious one. In fairness to this class I feel that after they have rendered honorable service, extending over many years, they should be entitled to some retirement compensation.

"To-day I have no fear in making the statement that for all the saving which has been made, the quality of service given to the citizens has not deteriorated. Instead of a deterioration I caim increased efficiency.

Bosses Have to Behave.

"Ten bricklayers, now laying 1,600 bricks a day on fine invert sewer work, are an advance over the fifty bricklayers, who formerly laid 300 bricks each on an average during the same period. These figures are the result of studies made by engineering experts.

In the Paving Division $2,000 a year was spent for harness repairing which would be well paid for with an allowance of $400, the repairing of an express wagon cost $138, and of a Concord buggy $87, where $19 was expended for labor to apply $3 worth of paint.

"It will be hard to prove deterioration in service in a district simply because the city official in charge is doing work with his own plant instead of carrying a hire team roll of $5,000 a month for the purpose of advancing the Congressional campaigns of a ward leader.

"There is now going on in Boston certain construction work which was under way during the last administration. It has not changed the slightest in character and gives a chance for a dollar and cents comparison.

"During the period from May 17, 1907, to January 28 of this year the sewer in question was costing the city by day labor $21.07 per cubic yard. During the period from February 26 of this year to June 30 this identical sewer has been progressing at a cost of $13.41 per cubic yard. The whole explanation is that the city is now getting nearer the true efficiency of labor out of its employes."

Mayor Hibbard said he had broken the teamsters' "trust" on city business. He said: "On general contract work in the building and repairing of schoolhouses and streets and all such public works we are securing figures from 24 per cent. to 40 per cent. lower under a system of public advertising for proposals."

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

International Organizer Edward Barry of New York, of the Sheet Metal Workers, personally obligated eighty-eight members of the old Roofers No. 17, who became members last night of Boston Sheet Metal Workers No. 17.

It is expected that about thirty-four more will join next Tuesday night, nearly all of them at present being on out-of-town jobs.

The amalgamation of the two unions will result in the elimination of any possible jurisdictional faction and is expected to pave the way for similar action in other cities.

Robertson G. Hunter, State actuary, explained the new legislative act on savings bank insurance and its practical workings here introduced.

A committee of twenty-five, with James Moriarty as chairman, was appointed to make arrangements for a ball this Winter.

LABOR NOTES.

Painters, No. 11, last night endorsed the candidacy of John T. Cashman, agent of the union, for president of the Boston Central Labor Union. Fred J. Kneeland was elected a delegate to the Boston C. L. U. It was reported that bogus tickets were being sold for the annual ball. All official tickets will bear the official seal of the union. The ball will be in Odd Fellows' Hall, November 18. International Organizer William F. McCarthy reported on work in Lynn and Danvers. He will attend the State Branch convention in Lowell and then call on the Maine and New Hampshire unions.

President Chris Mallen reported at last night's meeting of Barbers, No. 182, by telephone from Taunton, where he is acting as arbitrator in a local dispute. The local admitted 33 new members last night and reinstated 15 old members.

At last night's meeting of the Boston Central Wage Earners' Club, Secretary Murphy reported that he had made application to Police Commissioner O'Meara and Chairman Minton of the election commissioners for copies of the lists, but had not received them. Chairman Curran and Secretary Murphy were appointed official press and publicity committee. Boston Lodge of Machinists, No. 264, will hold a smoketalk in Wells Memorial building, November 5.

Coopers, No. 89, last night elected acting President Philip H. Sweet of the State Branch as delegate to the State Branch convention. Full financial support was voted the Coopers who struck at local breweries because of the discharge of members of the union. Unless the matter is settled soon the grievance will be brought to the Boston Central Labor Union.

Next Tuesday night the formation of a Metal Trades Section of the Boston Central Labor Union will be completed. A meeting will be held at Wells Memorial Building, to which every metal trade has been invited to send delegates.

ADMIT TUTTLE RESIGNATION IS "POSSIBLE"

B. & M. Statement Given Out; One More "Denial" by President of Road.

SALE OF C. P. R. TALKED OF

Though President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine is to-day kept busy denying the AMERICAN'S story that he proposed submitting his resignation to the directors one week from to-day, in pursuance of the New Haven's plan to take over the actual management of the road illegally acquired, State Street still believes that he will sooner or later be supplanted by a New Haven official.

The AMERICAN yesterday stated on authority of men high in transportation circles that Vice-President John F. Stevens of the New Haven was slated for Tuttle's job.

When the executive committee of the B. & M. meets to-morrow it will be decided whether or not President Tuttle will continue in the office of president after the directors' meeting October 14.

Another Strenuous Denial.

Leading financiers point out the fact that Mr. Tuttle strenuously denied the report a year ago last Spring that the New Haven had acquired over 100,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock and had control of his railroad. This block has been turned over to J. L. Billiard of Meriden, agent for J. P. Morgan.

When in August the BOSTON AMERICAN announced that the Boston & Maine had illegally bought up the control of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad, Mr. Tuttle next day declared that the report the Boston & Maine owned the "Narrow Guage" was "absolutely untrue." A few days later the State Railroad Commission announced that on August 12, twenty-eight days after patrons of the "Narrow Guage" had protested against Boston & Maine ownership, President Tuttle had disposed of the holdings of Revere Beach & Lynn stock which had been illegally held in the Boston & Maine treasury for seventeen years.

"Such a Thing Possible."

Now President Tuttle denies that he is to resign. Yet a statement issued from the chief offices of the Boston & Maine to-day says:

"While President Tuttle and Vice-President Berry do not expect to resign, such a thing is possible."

It is considered possible, now that the resignation of these two officials has been discounted by the AMERICAN'S publication of the proposed action, that the directors will refuse to accept Mr. Tuttle's resignation one week from to-day when they meet at Lawrence for their annual meeting.

But, knowing that the New Haven interests hold 160,000 out of 313,484 shares, or a majority of the Boston & Maine stock, including their latest acquisition of some 60,000 shares, Mr. Tuttle knows that his position would be insecure should the New Haven interests wish to depose him. It is said that he will read his resignation, and that if the board members urge him to remain he will gladly consent.

At the annual meeting a year ago the New Haven was enjoined by act of the Legislature from voting its 109,948 shares of Boston & Maine common until July 1, 1908. The last Legislature took no merger action. Therefore, the Mellen owners are free now to go ahead and vote the stock in their possession.

"Foreign Ownership" Bogie.

The Boston News Bureau, generally recognized as the New Haven's official organ in Boston, to-day revives the old bogie of foreign ownership. It again hints that to spite Massachusetts the New Haven has sold out the Boston & Maine to the Canadian Pacific, or the Delaware & Hudson, or the New York Central.

This story was exploded months ago. The New York Central sold over 5,000 shares to Mellen to facilitate the merger. The Delaware & Hudson is dominated by the Harriman and New York Central interests and isn't hunting railway bargains. The New Haven doesn't want to sell out to the Canadian Pacific Railroad, as it can use the Boston & Maine.

SAYS SHE SHOT BROTHER-IN-LAW TO SAVE LIFE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 7.—Deputy Coroner White hurried from Media to Red Gables as soon as he was notified of the shooting of Captain J. Clayton Erb by Mrs. Harry C. Beisel, sister of Mrs. Erb, during a quarrel last night, but Erb was dead when he arrived at the hospital.

Coroner White is conducting a preliminary investigation to-day and gathering evidence to be used later. The revolver with which the shots were fired was of thirty-two calibre and all six shots took effect.

Erb was still breathing when the doctor arrived but he was unconscious and died within a few minutes without speaking.

On the way to the county jail at Media, Mrs. Beisel told Constable Simpson that Captain Erb had pointed the revolver at her and that she had taken it and killed him to save her own life. At the jail, where she arrived shortly before 5 o'clock this morning, she was calm and declined to make any statement whatever. Mrs. Erb was attracted by the shooting and ran from her room, according to reports, and found her sister standing over the form of Captain Erb with the revolver in her hand.

"Well, I've done it," the sister remarked, after which she went to her room and placed the revolver in a darwer in her dressing table.

CUTS HER SON OFF WITH $5

Mrs. Mary A. Halloran of Brookline cut her son Edward B. Halloran off with $5, and left the balance of her $6,800 personal estate to other relatives, her pastors and a parochial school in which she was interested, by her will allowed in the Dedham Probate Court by Judge Flint to-day.

DR. STOWE TO JOIN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

BRIDGEWATER, Oct. 7.—The Rev. Charles Edward Stowe, son of Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has resigned his pastorate at the Central Square Congregational Church for the purpose, it is said, of entering the Episcopal ministry. Mr. Stowe has been pastor of the church for six years, and will continue to act as minister until January, when his resignation goes into effect.

TEDDY, JR., MAY JOIN ORANGE BEAR HUNTERS

Report That President's Son Will Quit Work to Capture Bruin.

ORANGE, Oct. 7.—A sensation was caused here yesterday when a rumor was current to the effect that Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., hearing of the big bear which has terrified the people in this vicinity, had decided to quit work in the Hartford Carpet Company's factory for a few days and come to Orange to enjoy a real bear hunt.

All day long crowds thronged the depot anxious to get a glimpse of the eldest son of the President, and when night came it was a sadly disappointed crowd that went home.

The rumor seemed to have good foundation, and elaborate preparations were being made to give young Theodore a royal welcome.

Scores are hunting for the bear to-day. The animal has carried off several head of live stock, and the enraged farmers say they will not rest until he is killed.

While several hunters were in the thick wood near here they heard a faint rustling of the leaves, and thinking it was the bear they fired in the direction of the noise.

Upon investigating they found William Morris of Northfield lying unconscious in a pool of blood. Doctors were summoned, and it was found that Morris had only received a slight scalp wound.

CANDY CHARGED UP TO JOHN D.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—When a coachman in livery entered Former Councilman Tom Felton's confectionery emporium in the East End and asked for a seventy-five-cent box of bon-bons for John D. Rockefeller, Felton was puffed with pride.

"May I charge it?" asked the coachman.

"Hm, certainly; well, I guess yes," ejaculated Felton, as he hauled out his day book and ledger.

"Account John D. Rockefeller: One box bonbons, 75 cents," is the way it reads in the book.

"Oh, I guess he's good pay," said Felton as he opened the book again to admire the item. "He can have anything he wants charged."

STEVENS RALLY TONIGHT.

General Hazard Stevens, the free trade candidate for Congress in the Tenth District, will attack both the old parties at a rally to-night at Whiton Hall, Dorchester. General Stevens will show how the Republicans keep the trusts in power through the high tariff, and how the Democrats refuse to bring about relief for the people by advocating the abolition of the tariff.

CITY HOSPITAL SUPPLY PRICES BEING PROBED

Mayor and Finance Board Take Up Charges of Extravagance and Discrimination.

Agents for the Finance Commission have begun an investigation of supply purchases by the Boston City Hospital to determine whether or not there has been extravagance in prices or discrimination in the concerns patronized.

Representatives of several firms have complained that they have not been allowed to submit bids for supplies, and that the city has paid extra high prices for hospital suplies.

Mayor Hibbard has directed some of these firms to submit bids for foodstuffs, bedding and sundries to him personally. He will compare these figures with those now paid by the hospital. The investigation conducted by the Finance Commission is independent of that being made by the Mayor.

Members of the Common Council are also investigating the hours of labor for City Hospital employees.

NEW PRESIDENT AT WILLIAMS

WILLIAMSTOWN, Oct. 7.—Harry Augustus Garfield, Williams '85, ex-professor of politics at Princeton University, was inducted into the office of president of Williams College to-day.

The State was represented by Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., and members of his staff. James Bryce, ambassador of Great Britain, was also present, as well as United States Senator W. ROB HOUSE IN BROOKLINE

Search is being made to-day for a band of burglars who last night entered the mansion of Winthrop A. Harvey, at 37 Philbrick road, in the exclusive section of Brookline, and got away with valuables the value of which cannot be learned until the members of the family, who are away, returns.

The house was ransacked, and things turned over in a manner to show the police that much plunder was taken. The entrance was secured by breaking a window at the rear of the house.

THINK KERMIT HAS CHANCE TO MAKE ELEVEN

Shows Up Well at Tackle in Last Two Days of Freshman Practiec.

Kermit Roosevelt, son of the President, who is trying for tackle on the Harvard freshman football team, was out at the Stadium for the second day of practice yesterday.

Young Roosevelt is not as heavy as most of the boys who seek gridiron honors, but his playing is snappy, and he goes into the game with a determination to win. His showing during the last two days of practice make it probable he will make the eleven. Kermit is determined that when he leaves the university it will be with as good a record as that made by either Big Teddy or Little Teddy, both in sports and studies.

LITTLE HOPE OF SAVING YANKEE

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 7.—Naval men now believe that the cruiser Yankee is doomed and that she never can be hauled from the cradle of rocks on the Hen and Chickens reef, where she went ashore on September 23. Eight powerful steamships vainly tugged at the wreck yesterday until the cement in the cofferdam gave way and left the Yankee in as precarious a plight as ever. She has twenty-five feet of water in her engine room and is badly listed to port, with one end up in the air and half a dozen holes in her bottom.

PRESIDENT TUTTLE'S DENIALS.

On the Illegal Grab of the B. & M. by the New Haven:

"The New Haven does not own the Boston & Maine. I do not know of any stock deal by which the New Haven has acquired control of our road. It is absolutely untrue."

WHAT HAPPENED:

President Tuttle admitted at the State House at a hearing that he knew of the "merger" plans for months before the news of the purchase of the 109,948 shares by the New Haven became public.

On the Illegal Grab of the "Narrow Gauge" by the B. & M.

"The Boston & Maine does not own the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad. The story that the B. & M. has bought up a controlling interest in the 'Narrow Gauge' is absolutely untrue."

WHAT HAPPENED:

On August 12, twenty-eight days after Roscoe Walsworth protested to the Railroad Commissioners against the B. & M. grab of the "Narrow Gauge," Mr. Tuttle disposed of his majority holdings to "friendly interests."

AGED MOTHER DIES BEFORE SON IS FOUND

Police Efforts to Locate Missing New Yorker Caused Great Furore.

After the police of Boston and New York, aided by the Pinkertons, had searched for him for twenty-four hours, and his friends and relatives had begun to fear he had been the victim of foul play, George L. McConnihe, a wealthy billiard supply manufacturer, of No. 66 Madison avenue, New York, turned up to-day, greatly angered to thingk his disappearance had created such a furore.

The alarm which interested the police was sent out by relatives who wanted to get him to the deathbed of his mother, Mrs. Susan L. McConnihe, who was a patient in a private hospital at No. 78 Chandler street, West Somerville. Before the son could be located, however, his mother died at 9 a. m. to-day.

McConnihe is the senior member of the billiard supply firm of McConnihe, Hubbell Manufacturing Company, the largest of its kind. He is rich. He came from New York Monday night and went almost direct to the hospital to see his mother. She was fast succumbing to the ills of her great age, being eighty-four years old. He promised to return Tuesday morning.

While in the hospital he paid some bills and ordered several things for his mother and in so doing displayed a very large sum of money, about $2,000. When he did not return the following day and his mother grew rapidly weaker his cousin called up the Hotel Lenox, where he had registered, and was shocked to hear McConnihe had not returned there. Recalling the large sum of money which he carried she at once got into communication with the Somerville police and they in turn took the matter up with Boston and New York. Relatives in the latter place insisted that the Pinkertons, too, be employed.

The police, having in mind the possibilities and the holdups which have shocked Boston during the week, began to work on the foul play theory. The detectives who are working on the case were consulting with the Pinkertons at the hospital to-day and all were ready to begin a systematic search when a fine big touring car rolled up.

Out of it stepped a little, gray-haired man of sixty carrying a small black overcoat and he hurried up the steps.

"How's mother?" he asked anxiously.

"She died this morning," he was told. The little man was McConnihe.

COURT ORDERS ROAD TO SHOW NECESSITY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The Court of Appeals in a decision handed down to-day holds that the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad Company should obtain a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Public Service Commission before building its road. The question arose in the so-called Huntington case in connection with the condemnation of lands for right of way. The judgment and order of the lower court is reversed.

"I CAN CONVICT HASKELL WITH BRYAN AS JUDGE"

—L. T. Russell of Guthrie

EDITOR WILLING TO FORFEIT $25,000 TO DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE IF HE FAILS.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Oct. 7.—L. T. Russell, editor of the Ardmore Morning Democrat, has addressed a second letter to William J. Bryan, renewing sixteen charges against Governor C. N. Haskell, late treasurer of Bryan's campaign committee, and offering to prove them.

Russell makes the proposition that Bryan meet him in Oklahoma City at whatever time Bryan may choose and permit Bryan to be the judge, the result to be proof to Bryan's satisfaction or $25,000 worth of Russell's property for the Democratic campaign committee and the prison for Russell on the charge of libel and slander against C. N. Haskell.

In addition he sends Bryan a carbon copy of the evidence and charges he offered Bryan last year, which Bryan threw from a car window, together with exhibits and documentary proof of what he claims to be crooked corporation practices of Haskell, amounting to twenty-five newspaper columns.

Life Devoted to Fraud.

The charges which Russell offers to prove to Bryan's satisfaction are:

"That Haskell's entire life has been spent promoting corporations, most of which have proved fraudulent and of the wildcat order.

"That for nearly twenty years he has never operated legitimate personal business, but has always worked through corporations and stock companies, wherein his associates have invariably been swindled.

"That for three years his only business was stock jobbing and bond manipulation in Wall street, New York.

"That from every quarter where he has operated the same report of swindled associates and defrauded laborers and creditors follow him.

"That he is judgment proof.

"That he is and has always been a tax dodger.

"That he owns nothing in his own name.

Family Man Without Home.

"That while he is a man of large family, he has never maintained a home in the State where he now is Governor, but has only had a hotel residence.

"That he was a member of and prime mover in the origin of the Citizens' Alliance at Muskogee against organized labor

"That in the short space of four years in Muskogee, Haskell organized and promoted twenty-three corporations, few of which ever made their first annual report under law and nearly all are now extinct, to the great loss of Haskell's associates.

"That judgments and debts now stand against him from small labor and board bills, up to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"That Haskell is the greatest character assassin this country ever knew.

"That Haskell's one answer to all charges is 'You are a liar.'

The Challenge to Bryan.

"That here Haskell is recognised as having less regard for the truth than any man, public and private, who ever operated in this country.

"That the telegraph records of Guthrie will show agreements and collusion between Haskell and the Standard Oil attorneys.

"That the Standard Oil attorneys negotiated to pay for the circulation of 30,000 copies of Haskell's attack on Attorney-General West and his defence of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

"Remember the conditions: Place, Oklahoma City; time, your convenience; judge, W. J. Bryan. Result: Proof to your satisfaction of $25,000 worth of property donated to the Democratic campaign committee and the prison for L. T. Russell on the charge of libel and slander against C. N. Haskell."

GUFFEY TURNS ON GOV. HASKELL; CALLS HIM A SCOUNDREL

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—In reply to Governor Haskell's open letter to President Roosevelt, in which Colonel G. M. Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania, and T. W. Barnsdall, Pittsburg oil operators, are charged with being agents of the Standard Oil Company and in that capacity having engaged in conferences with President Roosevelt, the following statement was given out by Colonel Guffey:

"Haskell's statement that I ever discussed the Osage oil lease with the President is an absolute falsehood. The fact is, I never met or spoke to President Roosevelt but once, and that was at a reception and dinner given to him on July 4, 1902, at the Schenley Hotel, Pittsburg.

"That I am connected with the Standard Oil Company is a lie more than thirty years old, revived every once in a while by some scoundrel endeavoring to shield his own iniquities."

"Classiness" In Advertising

By Tom Carlton

One of the commonest mistakes of many business houses, which in other respects are conducted shrewdly and sensibly, is the persistence with which they cling to "classiness" in their advertising.

By "classiness" is meant not so much a particular method, but rather the whole point of view. Concerns which fall into this error are accustomed to emphasize class divisions and class distinctions among the American people, and to think that one class can be induced to form the habit of trading at one store and another class trained to buy most of its goods at another. The next step is to select for a medium a newspaper that is supposed to reach the particular class in mind and to neglect the others.

The mistake is twofold. In the first place there are no classes in American life, that is, no hard-and-fast lines, and there probably never will be. In the second place no one paper is read exclusively by any one kind of people or any particular community. All of the papers reach all of the people in proportion to their circulation.

The concern which believes in "classiness" in advertising generally advertises all its goods in one or two papers all the time. The consequence is that that particular field, that special market, is overworked, while the great fertile field outside those narrow boundaries is left untouched.

There is no business house, whatever class it tries to cater to, but has, every little while, special bargains which would appeal to all classes, and to neglect to make these occasions known is to miss opportunities that might just as well be seized.

The richest man will sometimes buy a low-priced suit of clothes to knock round in on his farm or in camp, and the poor shop girl will grasp the chance to pick up a good bargain at a store where she does not ordinarily regard herself as able to trade. "You never can tell."

Another thing: Many men would find that by dropping their "classy" ideas, placing the advertisements in other papers which reach new and different sets of readers and devoting space to a few special things, or even one, in a single announcement, they would not only greatly increase their business, but at the same time would actually reduce the cost of their advertising. There are thousands of instances where a small advertisement, devoted to a single striking bargain, would bring in quicker and bigger results than a page or half a page divided among a thousand items. It is a good deal easier for you to make a choice and you are much more likely to be tempted when the waiter mentions two or three dishes that are especially good than when he recites the whole bill of fare to you.

The merchant who wants an illustration of the advantage of dropping "classiness" in advertising should study the success of Marshall Field. He doubled his business by eliminating the "classy" and regarding the whole American people as his customers. The general impression is that he did a tidy little business. At any rate his good, sensible policy enabled him to lay by something for a rainy day.

The time for "classiness" is gone, if, indeed, it ever existed. Mastery of trade conditions, knowledge of styles and quality, honest values and faith that all the people are worth telling about a good thing—these are the factors that count to-day.

BIG BANKING FIRM OPENS NEW BUILDING

Commonwealth Trust Company Now in New Quarters on Summer Street.

BUILT OF LEE MARBLE

The Commonwealth Trust Company has opened its new quarters at No. 38 Summer street. At the opening of the building were scores of prominent business men and financiers. The new premises of this institution were much admired.

The building at the corner of Summer and Devonshire streets is one of the handsomest in Boston. Both exterior and interior are beautiful. The latter is equipped with every facility and convenience which the banking business requires. The work was brought to a completion under the eyes of A. Shuman, William A. Gaston and Junius Beebe, who constituted the building committee. Parker, Thomas & Rice are the architects of the building, and L. P. Soule & Son Company are the contractors.

The exterior is built of white Lee marble. The design is of the Italian Renaissance. Window openings are protected by handsome wrought and cast iron girders, grilled, with antique finish, and there are two handsome fluted columns, with carved Corinthian capitals, on the Summer street facade. The doors are of quartered oak with bronzed trimmings.

Convenient Location.

The vestibule is panelled to the ceiling in lime stone. The steps and floor are marble. The main banking room has a panelled wall of Carara and Blanco P. marble. The president's quarters have San Jago mahogany fittings. Mahogany and heavy bronze Florentine work are a feature of the directors' room.

A wide staircase leads to the safe deposit room in the basement, which is finished in imitation limestone and has a marble floor. Ample coupon rooms are provided. The ladies' room is finished in white.

The Commonwealth Trust Company absorbed the Colonial National Bank on April 28, 1904. The Colonial was a combination of the Manufacturers' National Bank, which was organized in 1873, and the Continental National Bank, so that the Trust Company and its predecessors have been in business in this locality since 1873.

It is purely a mercantile institution and is devoted to the interests of the business men of this section of the city. It is the largest banking institution south of Franklin street, and its location is the most convenient for firms doing business in the shoe, leather and wool districts.

Notable Directors.

The following gentlemen form the board of directors: S. Reed Anthony of Tucker, Anthony & Co.; George L. Batchelder of Batchelder Brothers; Walter C. Baylies of Amory, Browne & Co.; Junius Beebe of Lucius Beebe & Sons; Albert L. Brown of Brown, Riley & Co.; Walter G. Garritt, vice-president United States Leather Company; William A. RISKS LIFE TO STOP RUNAWAY

Risking his own life to stop the headlong dash of a runaway horse on Beach street at noon to-day, Officer John Lynch, the crossing policeman at the South station, probably saves the lives of a number of women and children who were in the path of the runaway. The horse, attached to an express wagon, was frightened by the Elevated trains and started on a mad dash up Beach street toward Washington.

Lynch was on his way home to dinner when he heard the horse galloping up the street. He ran into the street and threw himself at the horse's bridle, bringing the animal to a stop after being dragged a dozen feet.

Husband Asks $50,000 for Alleged Loss of Her Love

Mrs. F. E. Barentzen of Malden.

Papers in the $50,000 damage suit brought by Frank E. Barentzen of Malden against Robert C. Guptill, a wealthy contractor of the same city, charging Guptill with the alienation of the affections of Mrs. Barentzen while "a trusted guest," were filed to-day in the Middlesex Superior Court.

The wording of the complaint is unusual. Guptill, a prominent business man with a wife and grown daughter, is accused of "contriving and wrongfully intending to injure him (Barentzen), and to deprive him of the comfort and society of his wife while a trusted guest in his house, unlawfully and unjustly gained the affections of his wife and persuaded and secured and enticed her to transfer her affections from the plaintiff to the defendant."

Daniel B. Beard of No. 8 Beacon street filed the papers as counsel for Mr. Barentsen.

Business Troubles

According to Guptill, business troubles enter into this suit, which was first mentioned to the astonishment of Malden society on August 30 last.

But Barentzen declares that he has brought this action of tort against the well-known contractor of Malden solely because he says Guptill won Mrs. Barentzen's love and broke up his home. Mrs. Barentzen, who is a strikingly handsome woman, is the mother of three children.

Barentzen was a photographer. He had a studio in Malden, and made for himself a good reputation in his art. He discovered certain photographic processes which he believed to be of wonderful value. Guptill entered into partnership with him in the manufacture, providing the money while Barentzen had the technical knowledge.

Barentzen and Guptill have their factory off Pleasant street, Malden.

"There is not a word of truth in these charges," said Guptill to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter. "There was never anything in my acquaintance with Mrs. Barentzen which would justify them. I did call at my partner's house many times, and I remember stopping twice in my automobile, and that he was not there. I called to see him when things were not going right at the factory.

Denies Charges.

"I think I stand too well in the community for people to believe that there is any justification for this suit. My friends, I know, will take no stock in such charges. Of course, I feel the matter keenly. I can stand it myself, but it is more than painful to have one's family made to share such a burden.

"Barentzen wanted me to make him manager of the business. I did not think him qualified and we had a quarrel at his home in Clifton street. After some time, that was months ago, I received a lawyer's letter. It referred to our business matters and difficulties, but it was characteristic of him."

The inquest was private, and the judge's finding will be filed with the clerk of the Superior Court.

HARVARD GOLD HUNTERS SAVED IN SHIPWRECK

Noted Crimson Athletes Taken Off Sinking Yacht in the Bahamas by Liner.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 7.—Their dream of fortune vanished and grateful to have escaped with their lives, the little band of Harvard men were taken off the shipwrecked old cup defender, Mayflower, on Watling Island, the Bahamas, early to-day.

Just when they had about given up all hope of rescue the Hippolite Dumois, one of the United Fruit Company's fleet, answered signals and rescued them.

The passing steamship Advance to-day reported by wireless as having seen the Mayflower with both masts and bowsprit gone and flying flags of distress last Saturday.

The Advance stood by five hours, but it was impossible, in the face of the gale, for the Advance to turn, though it was twice attempted, only to have the boat lie on her beam, with seas washing over her smokestacks. The Mayflower was kept in sight until a fruit boat hove in sight coming north.

The fruiter discovered the distressed boat and signalled to the Advance that she would pick up the yacht, the Advance proceeding on her course.

The Mayflower sailed from Marine basin September 19, chartered by Harvard students organized as the Southern Research Company to look for an old Spanish galleon said to have sunk off Jamaica with a rich treasure many years ago.

The Mayflower's crew consisted of the following college men, with one exception all noted Harvard men:

Skipper Scull, Harvard '08; Gordon Brown, Yale 01; Stephen Noyes, Harvard '03, the famous quarterback; H. L. Corbett, Harvard '03; Buck Harrison, Harvard 04, and Roger Derby, Harvard '05, one of the great Harvard football players, and Roy Leaycraft.

Since the expedition started out a rival expedition found the sunken galleon, but discovered no gold.

PROF. EASTMAN COURT WITNESS

Mrs. Richard J. Grogan of Cambridge who is being sued to-day in the Middlesex Superior Civil Court, East Cambridge, by Attorney Francis B. Mullin, before Judge Wait, for counsel fees, has as her principal witness Professor Charles R. Eastman of Harvard, who ten years ago was on trial in the same courthouse charged with the murder of her husband, Richard J. Grogan.

At that trial but one decade ago Mrs. Grogan was the principal witness against Professor Eastman. He was exonerated of the deed and to-day the professor appeared to take the part of the woman whose testimony was all against him when his life was at stake.

The trial of the suit to-day arises from the settlement of the estate of the late Alvan G. Clark, the celebrated manufacturer of lenses and telescopes, who died some years ago at his home in East Cambridge. Alvan Clark was the father of Mrs. Grogan as well as the father of Professor Eastman's wife. The amount involved in the suit brought by Attorney Mullin of Cambridge is about $500.

PEARY OFF ON LAST DASH FOR THE POLE

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., Oct. 7.—Commander Peary left Etah on the steamer Roosevelt August 18 on his final dash to the pole, according to Henry Johnson of New York, who was one of the crew until he was hurt at Etah, and who passed through Sydney to-day on his way home. Johnson said the Eskimos reported that the ice in Kane bay was not heavy, and it is expected that the Roosevelt will make an uninterrupted run through Kennedy and Robinson channels before Winter sets in.

The Stomach Does Not Cause Dyspepsia

Neither Will It Cure It Because the Lack of Gastric Juices Prohibits Relief.

The stomach is a strong, powerful organ, which is composed of muscles of great strength. It is filled during digestion with gastric juices which, when the stomach, extending and compressing the food, dissolve it and separate the nourishment from the waste matter. If, however, these gastric juices are lacking, the stomach is not capable of digesting its food because it has not the tools with which to work successfully.

The gastric juices when in a perfect state do away with all foul odors, fermentation and decay, reduce the food to a disintegrated mass and the stomach then presses it into the intestines where another form of digestion takes place. Then the intestines take from this mass of food all that is nourishing and give it to the blood. The waste matter is thrown from the system.

If instead of nourishment the intestines receive impure deposits combined with a poisonous and imperfect gastric juice, it can be readily seen that they must turn such imperfect nourishment into the blood. The blood then being unable to give each part of the body that which it requires, becomes impoverished and disease is spread broadcast.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets correct such a condition at once. If the gastric juices are lacking and imperfect these tablets do their work just the same. They build up the elements in the juice which are lacking and remove those elements which cause disturbance.

Meat, grains, fluids, vegetables and delicacies, in fact each portion of a large meal, have been placed in a glass vial and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have digested them to a perfect fluid just as a healthy stomach would do.

A large complex, hearty meal holds no terrors for a dyspeptic if Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used. Abnormal eating, late dinners, rich foods cause ill effects to the stomach, but when Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used one may eat when and what one will without danger of dyspepsia or discomfort.

Forty thousand physicians endorse and prescribe Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and every druggist carries them in stock, price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you at once by mail a sample package free. Address, F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

William R. Hearst Shows Why Kern, Boss-Made Candidate, Should Follow Haskell and Foraker Into Retirement

CONNECTION OF VICE-PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE WITH CORPORATIONS SHOWN.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 7.—Following is the speech of William Randolph Hearst, delivered here:

My Friends—Resignations and retirements and withdrawals of public men into peaceful pursuits of private life seem to be much in vogue at present, and a fashion which conduces so greatly to the improvement of public morals and the welfare of the citizens generally ought to be heartily encouraged.

I intend to encourage it, and I intend to give every discreditable public man whose thoughts lean toward retirement all the incentive that a dispassionate relation of the interesting incidetns of his career will afford. Mr. Kern, who has achieved fame as the railroad pass candidate, and who aspires to represent the Big Four railroad in the government of the United States, seems eligible for the retired list in the face of these returns and without the presentation of any further facts.

But there are further facts, and they seem to entitle Mr. Kern even to retirement upon a pension rather than to permit him to act as presiding officer of the Senate and a possible incumbent of the presidential chair. The full amount of a pension could probably be secured by the government through a small assessment upon the crooked politicians, the corporations and the gambling interests Mr. Kern has aided.

Mr. Kern was nominated for the vice-presidency by one of the most corrupt bosses in the United States, Tom Taggart of Indiana. You citizens, in your simple, trustful natures, may think that a convention nominated Mr. Kern. A Democratic convention doesn't nominate nowadays, it merely ratifies an appointment. Mr. Bryan for twenty-four hours held up the convention at Denver to offer Charley Murphy of New York the opportunity to name the vice-presidential candidate. But Charley Murphy, the most corrupt boss in the United States, refused the responsibility, and so the honor fell by natural inheritance to the second most corrupt boss in the United States, Tom Taggart of Indiana.

The Denver Post, the leading paper of the Middle West, independent in politics and published at the scene of the convention, said on July 11: "It was Thomas Taggart, chairman of the National Committee, who engineered the deal by which Mr. Kern was given second place on the ticket. Associated with him were Roger C. Sullivan and Mayor Dahlman of Omaha, the latter representing Mr. Bryan. The Commoner's brother was at all times in the confidence of the Big Three. Tom Taggart modestly and blushingly admits that he nominated Mr. Kern, and Mr. Kern proudly and publicly proclaims the fact that Tom Taggart nominated him."

The following affidavits are taken from among the crowd of newspaper men who interviewed Mr. Kern after his nomination:

Affidavits by Reporters.

State of Illinois, County of Cook.
Jacquin L. Lait, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That on July 10, 1908, he was in Denver, Col., in the capacity of a newspaper reporter, assigned to the national convention of the Democratic party at that time being held, that on that day, between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock, he was one of a group of newspapermen who met in the entrance of the Brown Palace Hotel the man known to him to be John W. Kern of the city of Indianapolis, Ind., and that he then and there asked Mr. Kern the following questions:

"To whom, Mr. Kern, do you owe your nomination for the vice-presidency?" and that the said Kern then replied: "I owe my elevation to the great honor to Thomas Taggart, who stood for my nomination from the first and refused to back down before the claims of any other State. I did not ask him to act for me, nor did I urge any one to get me the nomination; the fact is that I did not think the convention thought enough of my qualifications to return me a winner. My friends, however, seemed to have been convinced of my fitness through the unceasing endeavors of Mr. Taggart, and to him I am indebted and deeply grateful."

The deponent further says that between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock the evening of the same day he had occasion to further seek the aforesaid Kern, and that he found him in the private rooms engaged by a man known to him as Thomas Taggart of Indianapolis, and that Kern there, in much the same language, reiterated the statement herein set forth, and that Taggart handed to the deponent a typewritten statement giving a description of the history of John W. Kern aforesaid, and that on several occasions prior to the nomination the aforesaid Taggart told the deponent that it was a certainty that the aforesaid Kern would be nominated by the Democratic national convention to the office of the Vice-Presidency.

(Signed) JACQUIN L. LAIT.

Sworn to before me this 29th day of September, 1908, at Chicago, State of Illinois.

LEA LECLAIRE,
Notary public, city of Chicago, County of Cook.

Chosen by Taggart.

Crafton S. Wilcox, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he has read the foregoing affidavit, signed by Jacquin L. Lait; that the aforesaid Lait is personally known to him; that this deponent was present and near the said Lait, in the Brown Palace Hotel in Denver, on the day mentioned, and that the deponent was acting in the capacity of a reporter for the Chicago Record-Herald, assigned to the Democratic national convention; that he heard the conversation before the aforesaid Lait and a man who was known to him to be John W. Doesn't Look to People.

Such a thing as looking to the people or depending upon the people or appealing to the people, or expressing gratitude to the people or declaring an intention to serve the people never occurred to Mr. Kern.

Why should he? Mr. Kern has never done anything for the people and has never gotten anything from the people.

He has done a great deal for the railroads and the bosses, and for gambling establishments, and he has gotten a good deal from the railroads and the bosses and the gambling establishments.

He has never yet been elected by the people to any office of any consequence, but he has been appointed to important office by corrupt bosses, and appointed to lucrative attorneyships by gambling establishments, just as he was practically appointed the Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency.

Naturally, therefore, Mr. Kern knew on which side his bread is buttered and who buttered it. And as he eats his humble meal he is "deeply grateful," as he phrases it, to the good corporation cow that gave her milk and to the gambling establishmetns which churned it into butter and to the corrupt boss who spread the butter thick over Mr. Kern's slice of political bread.

There is nothing that I detest so much as the old form of political controversy, in which reckless statements and unsubstantiated accusations take the place of facts.

Even at the risk of being dull I have in this campaign abandoned all rhetorical indulgence, all personal association, and have depended merely upon facts—plain facts, unvarnished facts, court records, affidavits, documents and evidence of that character.

Ready for Retired List.

In urging Mr. Kern's indisputable eligibility for the retired list, with or without a pension, rather than as a leader of the Black Horse Brigade of the United States Senate, I shall depend entirely upon documentary evidence. I shall quote only from public records and published statements and sworn affidavits.

Mr. Kern's indebtedness to the bosses having been acknowledged, his indebtedness to the corporations is next in order. This association has been lately exposed by the losing and finding of Mr. Kern's railroad pass fro mthe Big Four railway. And it was formerly exposed by his connection with the great street railway scandals of Indianapolis during his term as city attorney. The finding of Mr. Kern's Big Four railway pass is still fresh in your minds, but I will repeat the account of it as published by E. W. Tatman. Mr. Tatman said:

> "When Mr. Kern was here at the fair he lost his note-book, and spoke of his loss to several men. News of the loss came to our office, as did later a telephone message that it had been found. Anything about a national candidate is interesting and a reporter was hurried to the scene of the find. The note-book, bearing Kern's name in gilt, wa of little interest, but in it was a pass issued by the Big Four Railway Company, good until December 31, 1908, bearing the name of John W. Kern. There were two or three other Big Four passes, but the reporter examined only one."

A railroad official, when asked how Mr. Kern had a pass when the Federal law was so sweeping against the issue of such passes, said Mr. Kern was the company's regularly employed attorney, and, therefore, could be given free transportation.

Mr. Kern explained that he possesses the Big Four railroad pass merely as attorney for the railway in damage cases against the railroad. The railroad officials declare that Mr. Kern possesses the pass as the regularly employed attorney for the corporation.

Has Railroad Pass.

I do not know from the data at hand which declaration is technically correct, but I do know that Mr. Kern possesses the pass, and I do know that he represents the Big Four railroad, and I do know that the Big Four Railroad is part of the Vanderbilt system.

You all know that the Vanderbilt system has excellent reasons for wanting one of their employes in an important position in the United States Government, for you all remember that the Vanderbilt system, like the Standard Oil Company, was fined by the government because of violations of the law. This Vanderbilt system was prosecuted by the administration, under evidence which I myself gave to Attorney-General Moody. This Vanderbilt system was convicted of giving illegal rebates to the Sugar Trust and was fined some $116,000 and paid the fine.

Mr. Moody expressed his thanks for the evidene given him in the following terms:

> "Some weeks ago a representative of the NEW YORK AMERICAN called upon me and said that information was in the possession of the paper tending to show that large rebates in the transportation of sugar had been given to the American Refining Company by the trunk lines of railroads running out of New York City, and asked me if the department of justice desired to use this information in legal proceedings. It ought to be said that until this information was furnished by the AMERICAN the department had no knowledge or suspicion of the facts, and that the representatives of that paper have aided the officials of the department in all the ways within their power."

Depew Works for Road.

The Vanderbilt system has placed Mr. Chauncey Depew in the United States Senate as a representative of the New York Central, the New York branch of the system, and it would like to have Mr. Kern elected Vice-President as a representative of the Big Four railway, the Indiana branch of the system. We have Mr. Kern's railway pass to prove his connection with the Vanderbilt system, and we have the following letter from Mr. Archbold to Mr. Depew as an interesting example of Mr. Depew's connection with the system. This letter also refers to a pass, so Mr. Archbold and Mr. Kern are in one respect in the same category.

> "No. 26 Broadway, Feb. 10, 1902.
>
> "My Dear Senator—Permit me to thank you most cordially for your very kind note of the fifth, with the accompanying complimentary pass. Believe me that I appreciate your kind expression in connection with this courtesy very highly indeed, and only hope that opportunity may offer for such reciprocation as will give evidence to you and your great corporation of the friendly sentiments I entertain.
>
> "Very truly yours,
> "JOHN D. ARCHBOLD.
>
> "To the Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, > Grand Central Depot, City."

Mr. Kern has not only been throughout his whole career the agent of privilege-seeking corporations, but he has been the legal tool of Tom Taggart in that venal boss's most corrupt enterprises.

Mr. Kern was appointed city attorney of Indianapolis in 1899 by Tom Taggart. The administration of Tom Taggart was disgraced by one of the most outrageous street railway scandals of American history. The street railway franchises of Indianapolis was given away to corporations who had corrupted the administration as you have seen administrations corrupted in San Francisco.

These franchises were given away for a mere trifle of compensation to the city, for thirty-four years, without any provision being made for universal transfer, and the company was absolved from paying car licenses and was released from all kinds of taxes except the general taxes.

When the indignant citizens of Indianapolis instituted action in court to nullify the franchises Mr. Kern called one of the attorneys of the traction company to his aid and fought the people's action. Mr. Kern was not only Mr. Taggart's legal tool in this case, but also in the gambling cases, which I will now take up in detail.

Kern a Legal Tool.

The French Lick Springs Hotel Company had been sued by the State of Indiana to annul its charter. The facts averred in the complaint of the State, and to be found on page 18, are:

That the corporation has violated its charter in the following respects:

1—By contributing to and encouraging the delinquency of children contrary to Acts of 1905, Page 44, Section 2.

2—By violating the statutes of Indiana respecting gambling and the operation of gambling resorts.

3—By bringing disgrace upon the community where the defendant establishment is located and upon the entire State.

The articles of incorporation of the French Lick Springs Hotel Company show that the incorporating members of said company are Thomas Taggart, Indianapolis, Ind.; George W. Kretzinger, Chicago, Ill., and Henry A. Hickman, Chicago, Ill. They further show that the board of directors may create an executive committee, to consist of the president of the company and two of the other directors, said president to act as chairman of said committee, and said executive committee to possess all the powers of the board of directors. Tom Taggart is president of the French Lick Springs Hotel Company. The execution of articles of incorporation were acknowledged by Thomas Taggart in the following affidavit:

State of Indiana, County of Marion.

Before me, the undersigned, a notary public, in and for said county and State, this, the 25th day of June, A. D., 1901; personally came Thomas Taggart and acknowledged the execution of the foregoing instrument, for the uses and purposes therein mentioned.

Witness my hand and seal this 25th day of June, A. D. 1901.

Lew Wallace, Jr., Notary Public in and for Marion County, State of Indiana.

That Tom Taggart is president of French Lick Springs Hotel Company is admitted and even advertised; as, for instance, in this little booklet which begins, "The French Lick Springs Hotel. Thomas Taggart, president. Open all the year."

The booklet might have truthfully said, "Wide open all the year."

The possessions and purposes of the French Lick Springs Hotel Company are set forth and described in their articles of incorporation. One of their purposes is "to establish and conduct pleasures and health resorts, to erect and maintain hotels and clubhouses."

The articles of incorporation do not set forth clearly the character of the clubhouses, but the advertisements of the company are a little more specific. These advertisements describe them as "Monte Carlo clubhouses,' and state, further (I quote again from the advertisements), that the "new Monte Carlo clubhouses furnish every conceivable indoor game."

We have all heard the name Monte Carlo, which is used in describing these clubhouses, and as far as we remember the name is not associated with any educational institution or with any religious institute, but with the greatest gambling institution in the world.

Every Gambling Game on Tap.

"The name was selected designedly, and the statement that the clubhouses furnished every conceivable indoor game is truthful in that they did furnish every indoor gambling game.

The further statement that "the pretty clubhouses furnish many attractions for rainy days" is doubtless true, and it is undoubtedly true that a good many dollars which had been saved up for rainy days were diverted into Tom Taggart's pockets through the medium of this gambling institution.

But we do not have to depend entirely upon the guarded description of the advertisements for our knowledge of the character of Mr. Taggart's Monte Carlo club.

The complaint of the State of Indiana declares that "the second floor is fitted up and attractively furnished as a gambling room and equipped with slot machines and roulette tables and wheels, Klondike tables, bookmakers' tables, faro tables and pool boards and other gambling devices where games are played for wagers of money.

"The said Casino is open and accessible day and night to all persons, men, women and children, and said people do there game and gamble and lay bets, wagers on the games of chance."

The complaint further declares that this is done "or with the knowledge, permission and connivance of said defendant, its officers, managers, agents and employes."

The allegations of the complaint are supported by the following affidavit and evidence. John A. Salyers, deputy constable, who executed a warrant to search the French Lick Springs premises, makes the following declaration:

"The warrant came to hand July 3, 1906, and served as commanded by calling to my aid Henry Russell, Frank Polk, O. L. Morris and Hugh Bass, and searched the within described premises, and found therein and seized and took possession of, and delivered to the within named James A. Gillum, justice of the peace, the following described property to wit:

Nineteen slot machines, six roulette tables, two Klondike tables, one faro table, two poker tables, one bookmaker's table, one set poker chips.

"And I found in said slot machines money to the amount of $486.32, all of which property and money mentioned in this return I have turned over to the sheriff of Orange County, under order of James A. Gillum, justice of the peace.

"Expenses of freight from French Lick to Paoli and from car to court house, $9.80. Constables for inventorying and removing property from French Lick to Paoli, etc., etc.

(Signed) JOHN A. SALYERS,
Deputy Constable.

Dated this sixth day of July, 1906.

John A. Salyers further testified in court as follows:

My name is John A. Salyers. I reside at Paoli, Ind. I was the town marshal of the town of Paoli. I took one of the two search warrants and William M. Baggerly, constable, took the other, and we proceeded to West Baden and French Lick to serve them.

Q.—Where did you go?

A.—I went to the French Lick Hotel Company's clubhouse.

Q.—Describe to the court what you found there.

A.—Down stairs at the club room I found a number of pool and billiard tables and a number of slot machines.

Q.—What, if any, personal property did you find upstairs?

A.—I found six roulette tables, two Klondike tables, one faro table, two poker tables, one bookmakers' table and some poker chips, and I found silver money in said slot machines amounting to $486.32.

Q.—What did you do with said articles?

A.—I took possession of them and turned them over to the sheriff of Orange County, under the orders of James A. Gillum, justice of peace.

Q.—When did you take possession of the articles described in your return?

A.—It was on July 4, 1906, I think.

Q.—Were you over to the West Baden clubhouse that day?

A.—Yes, sir.

Card and Poker Tables.

Q.—Whom did you see there?

A.—I saw a number of people there—Thomas G. Derry, Edward C. Harles and Constable William M. Baggerly and others.

Q.—Where were they?

A.—In the West Baden club room, near the hotel building.

Q.—You may describe the furniture and articles you saw in the club rooms there.

A.—I saw fifteen slot machines, four roulette tables, one Klondike table, two faro tables, four poker tables, one West Baden club table, part of keno outfit and two packages of poker chips.

Q.—What was done with them?

A.—Constable Baggerly took possession of them under the search warrant he held.

Of course, Mr. Kern, Tom Taggart's legal tool, appeared in defence of Tom Taggart and his gambling houses.

Here is a document in their defence signed by Mr. Kern. Mr. Kern went far beyond his duties as an attorney and defended Tom Taggart in public and in the newspapers. In the Indianapolis News of July 7, 1906, Mr. Kern says:

> The statements about Mr. Taggart and his business interests have been unfair and outrageous. When the real facts are known the maligners and slanderers will be the ones who will receive public censure. In the meantime Mr. Taggart will, of course, remain chairman of the Democratic national committee. No man in public life has been more unjustly assaulted than Mr. Taggart. The newspapers have persistently suppressed the truth and promulgated a scandalous falsehood, seeking to injure the Democratic party, and even attempting to injure the business and destroy the property interests of the corporation with which Mr. Taggart is connected.

The facts and sworn testimony and the statement of the Governor of Indiana and remarks of the Supreme Court do not seem to justify Mr. Kern's estimate of the innocence of Mr. Taggart's legitimate gambling business and the sacredness of the property rights involved.

The peculiar wickedness of the gambling at French Lick Springs under the immediate auspices of Tom Taggart and under the protection of his man Kern is shown by the following affidavit offered by the State:

> Comes now James H. Manion, who, being duly sworn upon oath, deposes and says that said casino or clubhouse is daily visited by hundreds of people, men, women and children, and that said people do there gamble and lay bets and wagers on games of chance.

The disastrous effect of the gambling at French Lick is shown in a statement made by Governor Hanly of Indianapolis, in denying a petition for the pardon of State Auditor David E. Sherrick, who had been sentensed to twenty-one years at the Indiana State Prison for embezzlement. The Governor declared that Sherrick was convicted by a jury of his peers, was sentenced legally after he had gambled away from $25,000 to $30,000 of the money of the State. I will now quote verbatim from the Governor's document:

> Within four months after his induction into office he (Sherrick) visited French Lick Springs, where he lost in less than thirty days more than $9,900 of money in gambling. At that time he had received but one quarter salary. Other than that he had no money of his own. His gambling debts at French Lick were paid by checks drawn upon the banks where the public funds in his care were deposited, and they were paid by these banks out of the public funds.

Responsibility on Taggart.

The direct responsibility of Tom Taggart for the peculiarly vicious gambling at French Lick Springs is shown, not only by his acknowledged, advertised position as president of the company, but by his personal copyrighting of the Red Devil trade-mark, which appears, as you see on the literature and advertising of the French Lick Springs Company, which I hold in my right hand, and on this gambling chip which I hold in my left hand.

The trade mark is patented under the number 47,760, and was registered in Washington by Tom Taggart in August, 1905. Taggart made the following statement at the time:

"To all whom it may concern, be it known that the French Lick Springs Hotel Company, a corporation duly organized under the laws of Indiana, and located and doing business in the town of French Lick, County of Orange, in said State, has adopted for its use a trade mark, of which the following is a description:

"The trade mark consists of the words PLUTO CONCENTRATED AMERICA'S PHYSIC and conventional representation printed in red, of the devil.

"The trade-mark is usually displayed on the bottles containing the goods by placing thereon a printed label on which the same is used. The printed labels are also affixed on boxes and packages in which bottles are shipped, and the mark is also blown into the bottles which contain mineral water.

"FRENCH LICK SPRINGS HOTEL CO., Thomas Taggart, President."

Thomas Taggart also made the following declaration:

"State of Indiana, County of Orange:

"Thomas Taggart, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the same Thomas Taggart who made the declaration in application for trade mark which was filed in the United States patent office on May 23, 1905, etc.

"That he is the president of the corporation, the applicant named in the statement of the above-mentioned application; that he believes the foregoing statement is true; that he believes the said corporation is the owner of the trade mark sought to be registered; that no other person, firm, corporation or association has the right to use the said trade mark, either in the identical form or in any such near-resemblance thereto as might be calculated to deceive.

"THOMAS TAGGART.

"An Excellent Representation"

The devil is an excellent representation for Mr. Kern's man Taggart or Mr. Taggart's man Kern, and part of the goods upon which this trade-mark is affixed are these gambling chips, like the one which I hold in my hand. That particular gambling chip was secured at French Lick Springs in the Casino, in August, 1906, in the presence of and with the consent of Thomas Taggart. Here is the affidavit to prove it:

State of Illinois, County of Cook.

Alex Yokel, being first duly sworn, deposes and says that he was present in the Casino at French Lick Springs in August, 1906; that the accompanying Pluto chip was purchased by him of a faro dealer in charge of a faro game at said Casino, used at that time for gambling purposes, and was so used in the presence of and with the consent of Thomas Taggart. That said chip is one of thousands identical used for such purposes in the Casino; that he has had said chip in his possession since that day.

EXPOSES TAGGART'S CONNECTIONS WITH NOTORIOUS GAMBLING RESORT.

ALEX YOKEL.

Flippant Defense by Kern.

Mr. Kern not only made the defense of Tom Taggart's "legitimate business" interests in the newspapers and in public throughout the State, but he prsonally made the legal argument before the Supreme Court of Indiana and endeavored to treat the whole matter of the gambling at French Lick Springs in a flippant manner.

The Governor of the State of Indiana did not treat agmbling in a flippant manner. The newspapers did not treat the gambling at French Lick Springs in a flippant manner, nor did they approve of Mr. Kern's attitude. The following three clippings are taken at random from one issue of the Indianapolis News, July 10, 1906.

> "The statement of John W. Kern sounds more like the blusterings of a pettifogging lawyer before a justice of the peace than the arguments of a genuine lawyer, with a genuine defence of his clients."—Columbus Republican.
>
> "How do the decent Democrats of the nation like to take their political dictation from a man who is keeper of a common gambling house?"—Frankfort News.
>
> "The spectacle of the Hon. John W. Kern, recently Democratic candidate for Governor of Indiana, vigorously defending the high-handed lawlessness of Tom Taggart and his notorious resorts does not harmonize with the views of leading eastern Democratic leaders."—Vincennes Leader.

The Supreme Court of the State of Indiana did not treat the gambling at French Lick Springs flippantly. Judge Rober, who cited the opinion, said:

> The averments of the pleading show that as a part of its enterprise appellee constructed or acquired a large building called a casino, to which men, women and children had free access, and in which gambling in many forms was systematically conducted.
>
> It is averred, both generally and specifically, that the criminal law was habitually and persistently violated, that the resort has been widely advertised throughout the United States as a place where gamblers may be lavishly entertained and engage in their unlawful practice without fear or molestation, and that the local authorities are unable to enforce the law.
>
> "The argument against the sufficiency of the facts stated in the complaint is confined to the proposition that the corporation is affirmatively shown to successfully carry on the business for the doing of which it was charged. This argument does not take into account the fact that the corporation is not charged with nonfeasance, but with malfeasance.
>
> "To have successfully conducted a hotel is no answer to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of children. It may also be observed that the form of any agreement as to the division of spoils between persons engaged in the commission of crime is likewise immaterial.
>
> "The State does not charter corporations to commit crime."

Mr. Bryan has offered if elected to share the White House with Mr. Kern. I suppose it would only be decent for Mr. Kern to reciprocate by sharing the club house with Mr. Bryan. If Mr. Bryan should be elected and should share the White House with Mr. Kern it will be the first time that that historic edifice has been polluted by the presence of a corrupt tool of corrupt bosses, of a paid attorney and political agent of criminally convicted railroad companies, of a paid defendant and an unpaid public apologist for the most vicious of all forms of gambling.

Mr. Bryan said that Mr. Haskell was appointed on his approval. Mr. Haskell has resigned.

Mr. Kern was nominated with Mr. Bryan's approval. I call upon Mr. Kern to resign, and I declare I will bring forth facts more damaging than have been brought forth in this address.

FROTHINGHAMS NEAR DEATH IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Sister of Postmaster-General Meyer Injured When Car Turns Turtle in Lenox.

LENOX, Oct. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham of Lenox, the latter the sister of Postmaster-General George von L. Meyer, had a narrow escape from being crushed to death beneath a motor car which turned turtle last night on the road, half way between Pittsfield and Lenox, throwing Mr. and Mrs. Frothingham into a barbed wire fence.

Mrs. Frothingham was unconscious when she was picked up. She was carried to a nearby farmhouse and later taken to her Summer home, Overlee, Lenox. To-day she is reported to be suffering severe pain from bruises and cuts, but is declared to be in no danger. Mr. Frothingham was badly cut and scratched by the barbs on the fence and his coat was entirely torn off. He had no broken bones.

The accident happened after Mrs. Frothingham had met her husband, on his return from Boston, at the Pittsfield station. They were on their way home when the motor overtook a heavily loaded farmer's wagon. The chauffeur, in attempting to pass the wagon, turned too far to the side of the road and the automobile turned turtle in the ditch. Mr. and Mrs. Frothingham and the chauffeur were thrown clear of the car, landing a few feet away.

Mrs. Frothingham was formerly Miss Eleanor G. Meyer of Boston.

GREAT ANIMAL SHOW IS FREE

The magnitude of the annual New England Food Fair in the Mechanics building, open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., impresses every one of the thousands of visitors. Like the other amusement attractions, Bostock's great animal arena is free to visitors. Performances are given in a specially constructed ampitheatre under Grand Hall. There are seats for about 3,500 persons.

All around the big room are the cages for the performing animals. Among these is the largest group of lions in the world. Many of the Numidians are of the class thought practically untamable, but Rinaldo, their trainer, has them under as perfect control as though they were house dogs.

Rinaldo has, however, one lion who gives him a great deal of trouble. Baltimore, the most savage lion of the African type in captivity, has often attacked his trainer and their combats have been thrilling, but Rinaldo has always been victorious.

The combination act, in which Rinaldo introduces lions, Russian bears and Danish bloodhounds at one time, is thrilling. Blondin, the trained trick elephant, is a splendid comedian. His greatest act is to walk a tight rope. The performance of Ora Cecil, with her den of leopards, is most effective.

There are five performances every day.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION IN HAVERHILL

New City Charter Adopted by Citizens by Vote of 3,067 to 2,241.

HAVERHILL, Oct. 7.—The voters of this city have adopted the new city charter, providing for a government by commission. The vote was 3,067 to 2,241.

The charter is copied from the Des Moines plan. Under its provisions a Board of Commissioners, or aldermen, is elected every year, with a salary of $1,800 each, and the old board of seven aldermen and fourteen common councilmen abolished.

The Mayor is also elected every year, at a salary of $2,500 instead of $2,000, as heretofore, but is to have no veto power.

The old School Board of twenty-one members will be replaced by four members elected at large.

The initiative and referendum is given the voters and also the right to remove any member of the government who does not hold true to the pledges of his office, by a petition signed by 25 per cent. of the voters.

CALL LEAGUE CONFERENCE

Members of the Independence League party in the Seventh Suffolk Senatorial District, composed of Wards 18, 19 and 22 of Boston, are making arrangements for a meeting at 8 o'clock this evening at No. 302 Roxbury street, Roxbury.

A large attendance is expected, for the movement toward the Independence party in this district is rapidly gaining. The object of the meeting will be to meet voters who are interested in the Independence League, and who wish to gain information first-handed as to its principles and the candidates it is putting forward for the votes of the electors.

Well qualified speakers are to attend the meeting and make addresses in which the purposes of the Independence League party will be clearly and convincingly explained.

SUFFOLK LEAGUE CONVENTION TO-NIGHT

The Suffolk County convention of the Independence League will be held to-night at the State headquarters, No. 348 Old South Building, when action relative to the candidates for country offices at the coming election will be taken.

ECZEMA AFFLICTS WHOLE FAMILY

Suffered for Two Years with Terrible Itching and Burning — Children in Fearful Condition — Unable to Sleep and Kept Scratching.

EIGHT SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"The Cuticura Remedies cured eight in our family (my husband, six children and myself) of a terrible eczema. We had it so bad that the children couldn't sleep at night for scratching themselves. They were broken out thick and crusted all over. Then it would itch and burn and big sores came on their hips and legs. They would cry with them and I myself suffered terribly with the itching and burning. We were this way for two years. It would get worse in the winter. I used all the home remedies that I could hear of without any relief and then I went to a physician and got medicine three different times but it did not do us any good. I did not know what to do so I went to a friend and asked her what it was she used for her children, and she told me it was the Cuticura Remedies. I sent at once for the Cuticura Remedies consisting of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent Pills. I also got one more box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Cuticura Soap. They relieved us at once and in a short time we were cured. I am truly glad of finding a cure for eczema, and I shall recommend the Cuticura Remedies highly to every one so afflicted. Mrs. Ruey B. Boice, Rockcastle P. O., Jackson Co., W. Va., Mar. 3, 1906."

MIRANDY ON GETTING OFF ON THE RIGHT FOOT--By DOROTHY DIX

"SUSANNAH SNIGGINS, whut is gwine to be married come next Tuesday, drapped around to my house last night," remarked Mirandy, "to ax me a mighty searchin' question.

"'Sis Mirandy,' says she, 'I'se about to enter de holy estate of matermony whut de novels prognosticates am a continuous picnic, but which looks to me, from de way my Pa an' my Ma acts—both a fightin' to rule de roost—mo' lak a battle ground.

"'Now, I done cast my eye around mongst de people I knows, an' I sees dat you is de freest woman, an' has de most clothes, an' has got de perlitest husband of any married woman of my acquaintance, an' dat whilst Brer Ike ain't so henpecked dat he calls for de pra'rs of de congregation, still he sings mighty small around home; an' so as one sufferin' feller creeter to anodder I axes you—how did you do hit?'

"'Shoo, chile,' spons I' 'hit ain't no job to manage a husband ef you starts right, an' you knows how.'

"'Maybe not,' answers she, 'but from de mess dat mos' wives makes of hit, I should judge dat dere was a lot of howsomeverness about hit.'

The Word Spoken in Season

"'Susannah,' says I, 'you well know dat I ain't one of dese women whut runs a free advice dispensary, an' dat pokes deir views down odder folks' throats whether dey wants 'em or no; but seein' as how de Good Book commands us to speak de word in season, an' as how any woman whut is gittin' her weddin' clothes shorely am in need of counsel about de tribulations of matermony, I feels hit my duty to give you a few pints.

"'An' dey is dese—Git off on de right foot. Dat's de whole of de law an' de gorspill, as Brere Jenkins say. Ev'ything depends on de way you gits started off in matermony. De fust month settles wheder you is gwine to be a doormat or a parlor ornament in yo' husband's house.

"'Ef you takes yo' seat on de top of de ladder, dar you'll set, an' yo' husband will burn incense befo' you.

"'But ef you flops down at de foot of de ladder, a-thinkin' dat may be yo' husband will boost you up, or dat after awhile you'll climb up yo'self, de ve'y fust time dat you rises up he'll pull you by de petticoats an' juk you down.

"'For a man don't think no mo' of a woman dan she thinks of herself. An' he believes ev'ything dat she tells him about herself; becaze after a man is married he don't look much at his wife nohow, an' he swallows everything she says dat don't call for a argyment.

"'What makes Ike think dat I is de mos' economical woman in town an' de best manager? Because I is always showin' him de bargains I bought, an' de things dat I got stung on I hides under de baid, an' don't say nothin' about.

GET READY! YOU IS NOW MAN AN' WIFE, GO!
I LEAD, YOU FOLLER

"Ev'ything depends on de way you gits started off in matermony. Git off on de right foot—dat's de whole of de law an' de gorspill"

A Few Tricks Wives Should Know

"'What makes Ike think dat his guardeen angel was a-wukkin' over time when he married me? Becaze I is always tellin' him what a good wife I is, an' how I saved him from marryin' Hannah Jane, whut has got twins, an' Emily Sue, whut has de epilepsy, an' May Belle Jones, whut cooks wuss 'n pizen.

"'Yes, chile, a woman suttinly does write her own price tag when she gits married, an' hit suttinly does rile me to see dem female gumps dat is always a-axin' deir husbands to overlook somethin' in 'em dat he never would have seen ef dey hadn't called his attention to hit.

"'But de main thing is to git off on de right foot. In ev'y fambly dere's one dat is hit an' one dat ain't. Dere's one dat has got ways an' one dat has to put up wid 'em. Dere's one dat gits de fine clo'es, an' one dat wears de patches. Dere's one dat gits de lean piece of de pork chop an' de odder dat eats what is left on de dish.

"'You be Hit.

"'An' whichever one you is depends on de start you gits.

"'What happens when a woman 'nounces as soon as she is married dat she ain't never done a lick of work, an' don't propose to, an' dat she is bleedged to wear a silk frock, an' is blessed wid nerves dat has to be took care of?

"'Don't de husband git up in de mawnin' an' git de breakfast, an' wash de chillen an' git 'em off to school, an' walk lak he was treadin' on eggs for fear of wakin' her up? Yas, Lawd, dat he does.

"'An' what happens when a woman marries one of dese heah uppity, biggity, consequential men what is a charter member of de Sons of Rest, an' dat ain't never too tired to walk in a procession, but is too feeble to sling a hammer in de carpenter shop?

How to Train a Husband

"'Don't his wife take in washin' to support de fambly, an' shoo de chillen out of the back door in de daytime for fear dey will disturb deir Pa's nap in de afternoon? Yes, dat she does.

"'Dat's de reason, when I turned dem facts over in my mind, dat de mawnin' after we was married I poured myself out de fust cup of coffee and took de brownest biscuit an' de breast of chicken. An' Ike he's been passin' 'em to me ever since.

"'Now, I ain't greedy, an' I'd like to give the best to Ike now an' again, but I dassen't do hit. You can't treat a husband lak you ought to widout spilin' him, an' de only way for a woman to git anything is for her to make her husband think dat she is bleedged to have it. Ef he once finds out dat she can do widout 'em, she is a goner.

"'An' hit's de same way about dem little fracases dat will break out in de fambly circle. Cose dere ain't no wife dat don't make mistakes, but, thank Gord, dere ain't no husband dat don't, elder, an' a smart woman always lights into her husband about somethin' dat he has done wrong befo' he has a chance to git after her.

Don't Let Him Forget His Sins

"'Dat's me. When I goes down town wid de rent money an' buys me a Merry Widow hat wid hit, befo' Ike can pass any remarks about my extravagance I sails into him about de way he cast sheep eyes at Ma'y Jane Jones at de chuch sociable, an' Ike's so busy defendin' hisse'f dat he forgits what I is done.

"'Dat's right, chile; you git off on de front foot, an' keep yo' husband so busy apologizin' for his shortcomin's he won't have time to notice yours. An' when you has any fambly argyments, don't worry about who has de last word, so you gits de fust. Hit's dat dat counts.

"'So long, chile. Follow dis advice, backed up wid a rollin' pin when necessary, an' you won't never have no call to go to de divorsh court.'"

THE GIRL WITH A HUNDRED SELVES

The confessions of an unknown girl writer, in which she lays bare her inmost secrets

BY ? ? ? ? ? ?

CHAPTER II.

The Man Self.

THERE is a Man Self of me that shouts and cries and jeers at the imbecility of my feeble, foolish, screamingly funny girl's life of emptiness. A Man Self that shows me the nothingness of the ties that bind me, the absurdity of my abject obedience, the utter folly of my slavery to the bauble interests that make up existence for me.

This Self it is that points a teasing, taunting, contemptuous finger, and howls with laughter at the prim, uncomfortable atmosphere in which I live, breathe and am stifled—that highly decorous atmosphere saturated with respectability, which I am too much of a coward to forsake.

And this Man Self it is that fills me with fierce, passionate rebellion, and all that is big and splendid and terrible in me rushes to take possession.

On the days when I am thus seized I feel my mind expand and grow and tower into the sky. The whole aspect of the world is changed for me. I swing my way down town to my work, and all about me Life leaps and calls to my brain.

I am sure in some former incarnation I must have been a man, and a fragment of the male consciousness still lingers. I long for the hearty freemasonry of speech and act which is inalienably man's heritage.

Yearns for a Man's Freedom

I yearn for the broad democracy that would bring me jam up against the human side of things—that freedom which gives man the right to speak to whomsoever he pleases without one inch of red tape.

I want to talk to people! I want to be told things! I want to see, feel, hear and learn as man learns! And the feeling is torture, because I have all of a man's longing and interest and not one whit of a man's chances!

How I long for man's knowledge of objective things—the knowledge that makes him understand the marvels over which I only wonder.

On days such as this I am all eyes and brain. I see as I have never seen before. Everything I see beckons to my brain. The sight of the great objective world, with its thousands of mechanical miracles, thrills me and awes me and sings through me in a constant chorus of sound.

Tunnels and bridges; subways and elevated roads; monster buildings that fling a challenge to the sky—all these things are marvelous; all these things I yearn to understand. I crave that understanding—the kind men have—and I crave the right to live and work with freedom, as men work.

But oh, the feeling is torture; for I have all a man's longings and interest, and not one whit a man's chances.

Fancy me—the trim, pretty girl-self, mind you—joining a tossing, yelling crowd that pursues a mystery to its source. Just imagine it, if you can! Yet, oh, how the Man Self in me shouts and cranes his neck and calls lustily for freedom to join that crowd.

Fancy me—just the girl-self—doing any of the hundred unconventional things that are right and proper for a man to do when he goes downtown to work; and what would be the verdict?

Sometimes—yes, sometimes, but not often—I almost forgot the girl-self that makes the Man Self so ridiculous; and before I know it, I have flung aside self-consciousness and am out in the street in a splendid, tumultuous throng, watching some keen, eager happening of the larger world; when suddenly I see a man's amazed eyes on me, and some one whispers, and presto! In a flash, as if it were a magician's trick, the illusion is shattered; the wild, free moment is fled; and I am back again in the old, narrow, maddening prison—a girl, just a pretty girl, and nothing more! And I am blushing—blushing because I dared forget.

Oh, the Man Self in me, with one sweep of a mighty arm, tears away the shams and the superstitions of the world, shows me the folly of conventions, the idiocy of labels, creeds and dogmas; compels me to see hypocrisies that masquerade as truth.

"The man self in me shouts to me to fling away the silly trappings of dress and style that wear out strength and patience with their absurd demands"

Nell Brinkley's illustration for "The Girl With a Hundred Selves"—the startling confession of an unknown girl writer

Keeps Saying "You're a Slave."

And he cries hotly in my ear: "Think of it; the slave you are; the fool you are, that you dare not burst the bonds and be yourself! Don't you know why women are the pawns of fate? Why they must suffer and slave and love and die in the power of man? It is because they wrap themselves in lies and superstitions. With their own hands they make the chains; with their own hands they build the prison that holds captive all their sex!"

It is this Man Self in me that rages against the fool restrictions of dress and style which I am too much of a coward to dispute. He shouts to me to fling away the silly trappings that wear out strength and patience with their absurd demands.

He urges me, day in and day out, "be brave, be courageous, dress in comfort, as men do. Throw away your instruments of torture; keep your strength for things that count. What does it matter if your veil is pinned awry and your skirt sags an inch in the back? What does anything matter beside your comfort, your freedom? Be free!"

Fooled and Cheated by Fate

This is the mood that rushes on me when I stand with tired, uplifted arms, struggling to pin my veil, or adjust my hat, or do some other trivial, senseless, yet necessary thing.

I have spent ten minutes in the effort, and still I can't succeed, when suddenly it sweeps over me how fate has fooled and cheated me, and how I ought to have been a man.

All day I ask the question savagely: "Why must I, who long to explore the universe, spend time stringing baby ribbon through yards of beading? Why should I squander myself tidying bureau drawers, making laundry lists, darning the finger ends of gloves, matching medallions for a shirtwaist?"

And the Man Self in me grows vehement, insistent, urging me to a cry of determination. And I glow with ardor and cry out, to the winds and to the fates: "I will prove it! Some one shall know myself, my Mind, my Real Self! Someone shall acknowledge and admire!"

And I say, clenching my frail woman's hands: "I will; I will; I will achieve. I will burst the shell, and push my way into that larger world!"

Expert Hints on Beauty

BY THE PROFESSOR

PERFUME FOR LOTION

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Will you kindly mention in your column something I can use to perfume the dandruff remedy you gave in answer to a previous request? I have used oil of lavender, but that doesn't seem to affect it much. TRAVELER.

YOU can put in any perfume which suits your individual taste. Essence of rose is always pleasant, and you can leave out the lavender. Or, if you prefer, get the lavender perfume and add to the lotion just as you have it. There is no absolute rule for such an ingredient, as you can use what you like.

QUINCE SEED CURLINE

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Kindly repeat the formula for curly hair, the one with the quince seeds in it. I have lost my formula and do not remember the proportions. DAISY.

POUR one pint of hot water over three teaspoonfuls of quince seeds and allow it to stand for several hours. If it is too thick, it may be thinned with water or cologne and a few drops of any desired perfume added. To the above amount use about two tablespoonfuls of cologne. Moisten the hair with this before putting it up in curlers.

WANTS TO BE TALLER

DEAR PROFESSOR:

Do you know of anything which would make me grow taller? I am a girl nineteen years of age and I am so very small that I very seldom go out, for fear that everybody looks at me. My brothers and sisters are tall, coming close to six feet, while I am only four feet six inches tall. If there is any remedy, kindly let me know. LONELY.

YOU would better be content to be one of the "precious things done up in small parcels," and dress in a way that will make you look as tall as possible. The little women are the ones who always get waited upon and taken care of anyway. Nobody ever thinks of going out of the way to wait upon a big woman. They always think she is not only big enough to take care of herself, but of them as well. Be satisfied, for it is always the little woman who gets the biggest plum out of the pie.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

TIME WILL SHOW

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have for the past year been keeping company with a young fellow two years my senior. I am eighteen years of age. He is an exceptionally good fellow, and takes me out twice a week. He calls to see me every evening, with the exception of Monday and Thursday. Still I am in doubt whether or not he loves me. He has never said anything to make me think so. I have tried several ways to find out, but as yet I have not succeeded. PUZZLED.

HE certainly seems very fond of you, and in all probability will tell you so, but it is time he did so. Perhaps if you showed him a little indifference it might bring matters to a head. Sometimes a man drifts along, taking things for granted.

TOOK OFFENCE TOO EASILY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years of age and love a young man two years my senior. I was talking to him one day when my father called me away. This young man seemed to take it as an insult. Since then he passes me by and tips his hat, but never speaks to me. Please tell me what to do, as I love him dearly.

A CONSTANT READER.

I DO not think I would bother much about a man who took offence so easily as this one did. However, if you are very unhappy over it you might write and explain matters. He must have a sulky disposition or he would never have behaved as he has done.

RUSSO FLEES BLACK HAND TO SAVE OWN LIFE

Wealthy Malden Italian Threatened, Store Wrecked, Horse Killed, Robbed of $300.

DREADS DEATH FROM BAND

Following the explosion of a bomb in the store of the wealthy Italian, Joseph T. Russo at No. 157 Washington street, Malden, the police of that city to-day discovered evidence which they believe shows conclusively that the dynamiting was done by the Black Hand Society, which makes a business of extorting money from wealthy Italians by terrorizing them. Here is a threatening letter received by Russo:

Mr. Russo—

"Sir—We want you to leave $500 in a bag at the gate near the gas house. If you do this you will be free forever. If you don't do as told you will suffer."

Mailed in Malden.

The letter was written in Italian and appeared to have been printed, so as to prevent discovery by means of identification of handwriting. The letter was mailed in Malden last Tuesday.

Russo has become so terror-stricken by the persecution of the Black Hand that he says he will leave the city. First he was held up and robbed of $300. Then his horse was killed by some unknown men. Last came the explosion of the bomb setting fire to his store. He says he will never surrender to the demands of the society and pay over the blackmail.

The demands of the society, Russo thinks are part of a persecution upon him because of his religious views which differ from those of most of his countrymen.

Blames Religion.

"The only thing for me to do is escape I guess," said Mr. Russo to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day. "I cannot stand it any longer, they are determined to wreck me. They have destroyed everything I own, and the next thing they will do, will be to kill me, so I guess I had better go."

"As far as I have not got an enemy in the world, but it may be because I changed my religion. I received a note telling me to resign from my church, but I paid no attention to it, thinking it a joke, but I see I was mistaken. When a man's life is in danger the only thing for him to do is to go away, and I guess I will have to do that or loose my life."

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 7.—Major Jared A. Green of Moultonboro speaks here in the Opera House to-night in behalf of Walter H. His rally here tonight is expected to be an enthusiastic one in view of the splendid reception Major Green was given last night in Salem Town Hall. After denouncing the machine's handling of the liquor traffic in this State, Major Green last night denounced the Boston & Maine Railroad's domination of the State. He brought arguments to show that the establishment of the Independence party is necessary to the welfare of the country and the people.

RICH DANVERS MAN OF 38 ELOPES WITH GIRL OF 14

COUPLE GONE SINCE SUNDAY NIGHT AND POLICE ARE ASKED TO LOCATE THEM.

Charles Hitchcock, a property owner of Danvers, and who for several years has lived on this income, and pretty Tillie Neubert, of Lynn, whom he trotted on his knees when she was a baby, are sought to-day by the police of Boston. Hitchcock is thirty-eight years of age while Tillie Neubert is fourteen and just out of short dresses.

William B. Neubert of No. 10 Friend street, Lynn, to-day asked the police to help him find his daughter who he says eloped with Hitchcock on Sunday evening. A warrant for Hitchcock's arrest on the charge of abduction, is soughted to-day by the Lynn police.

Through his attorney, Hiram E. Miller, Mr. Neubert to-day filed an attachment of Hitchcock's Danvers property which is supposed to amount to a considerable sum of money.

With Charlie, Girl Wrote.

Last Monday Mr. Neubert received a letter from his daughter and a note from Hitchcock, who for more than twenty years has been a close friend of the family, visiting them when little Tillie was a baby. The girl wrote under date of Boston:

"Dear Papa—I am in Boston with Charlie. I am all right, so don't worry. We intend to leave for the West to-day.
(Signed) "TILLIE."

And the note from Hitchcock, whom William Neubert had made his friend for years and to whom he trusted his girl as implicitly as man could, read:

"Dear Friend Bill:
"Will write in a few days and explain all. Your friend, CHARLES."

Then Neubert appealed to the police to help him find his daughter, and the man he charges with luring her from her home. Mother and father are all but distracted, and they think Hitchcock, who is unmarried, has secured a marriage license and married the girl.

Welcomed Man As Friend.

The last seen of them was Sunday evening at quarter past 6 o'clock. Hitchcock, who about four months ago had come from California, where he had spent some years, had renewed the acquaintance of years with the Neuberts. But the father and mother noticed with apprehension that this time he paid marked attention to Tillie, who is a tall, stately brunette with beautiful brown eyes and raven-black hair.

They wished to prevent this, while thoroughly trusting and liking Hitchcock. They thought of the disparity in the age of their daughter and their friend.

Sunday evening Hitchcock proposed a trip ot Salem to Tillie. His sister lives there, and he wished to get an overcoat at the same time. Mrs. Neubert thought the time had come to say no.

She said it, and Hitchcock and Tillie were plainly disappointed.

"Let the girl go for this time anyway. It will be the last," Hitchcock said, or something to that effect.

Took Girl Visiting.

The parents consented and Tillie hastily donned a linen skirt, a white shirtwaist, a white straw hat trimmed with black and a long, warm dark gray cloak. That was the last seen of the couple. Ten o'clock came, the hour they had promised to come home; then 11 and midnight. There was little sleep in the Neubert house that night.

The next day came the notes from Boston and Mr. Neubert, who is a prosperous shoe worker, consulted Attorney Miller. Then followed the prompt notification of the police and to-day the warrant issues.

To-day the mother, crying softly as she spoke, said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I believe that Charles means to marry Tillie. She was infatuated with him and we tried to break the attachment off just because of the difference in their ages. We like Hitchcock and we have known him for twenty years.

Quit Business to Travel.

"If he got a license to marry he must have misrepresented Tillie's age for she will not be fifteen until next February. But she would easily pass for a girl of twenty for she was wonderfully developed for her years.

"I hope they will find my girl. I want her at home. She is too young to marry. I have a boy baby of eighteen months and my Louise is sixteen, but I want Tillie, too."

Tillie Neubert is a very popular girl. Her beauty is as great as a brunette as that of her elder sister, Louise, who is of the blonde type.

Hitchcock, whose mother lives in Danvers, has always been well thought of. He bears a good name. Some years ago he was in the shoe business in Lynn until he fell heir to the property in Danvers. Since then he has traveled extensively. He is a good dresser, a good talker and most prepossessing.

CROWD HEARS DEBS SPEAK AT CONCORD

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 7.—Phoenix Hall, the largest in the city, was crowded last night when Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist candidate for President, spoke. He arrived here aboard his Red Special, after having made short stops at Lowell and Manchester.

BRIGHTON MAN FOR GOVERNORS COUNCIL

Thomas Hooper of No. 26 Tremont street, Brighton, was last night nominated by members of the Independence League party for the seat in the Governor's Council to represent the Fourth district. Mr. Hooper is well known in this district, as one year ago he received the Independence League nomination for the same position and made an active canvass.

B. & A. NOW BRANCH LINE OF CENTRAL

The New York Central management today made frank admission that the company has abolished the office of general passenger agent of the Boston & Albany Railroad, and that the work of the office will be done hereafter in New York. Boston thus becomes simply an ordinary ticket-selling office on the New York Central Railroad system.

This is considered the most important step openly taken by the New York Central to take the management of its interests out of New England hands. J. Pierpont Morgan, who is a member of the boards of directors of both the New Haven road, which now owns the Boston & Maine, and the New York Central, which operates the Boston & Albany, is said to be insistent of having entire control of these New England railroads in the hands of New York men. "Community of interest" is Morgan's view of the railroad situation.

Hanson Out, He Says.

General Passenger Agent A. S. Hanson of the Boston & Albany said to-day:

"Yes, it is a fact that the office which I now hold has been abolished. Our office here will be closed in a few days. I don't know what office I shall hold after the change."

It is claimed that under the terms of the Boston & Albany's lease by the State of Massachusetts of the Boston & Albany to the New York Central, the general offices of the road must be kept in Boston and that the newest step in making Boston literally a way station and ticket office is in defiance of this lease. The road's lawyers say the move is legal.

With the closing up of the B. & A. passenger offices in the South Station, a number of the clerks will find employment in the Central's New York offices. The B. & A. will have no passenger department of its own, the business being run from New York simply as one of the divisions of the New York Central system.

DEAL BLOW TO TAGGART IN GAMBLING WAR

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 7.—Progress toward putting the French Lick Hotel Company, of which Thomas Taggart is the head, and the West Baden Hotel Company, which is owned by Lee Sinclair, out of business by forfeiting their charters, was made for the State today when the Appellate Court denied a petition for rehearing in the suits to forfeit the charters of the two companies.

Another blow was suffered by the French Lick gamblers when the Supreme Court reversed the decision of Judge Buskirk in the Orange County Circuit Court, squashing the indictments against persons charged with having visited "a gambling house near Frenck Lick." The Supreme and Appellate Courts coming together in their decisions, hit the gambling games at French Lick hard.

Of the two decisions, that of the Appellate Court probably is the more important. The effort of the State to have the charters of the hotel companies declared null because of the violation of their charter rights in permitting gambling has been held up pending the court's decision. Action on the part of attorneys engaged in it and later on the part of Judge Robey contributed to the delay.

Judge Buskirk sitting in the Circuit Court at Paoli, had held that no action could be maintained against hotel companies to forfeit their charters as the State sought. His decision was reversed by the Appellate Court, but a rehearing was petitioned. The rehearing was denied, making possible immediate trials of the case.

FOR OLD PEOPLE.

After reaching the age of forty the human system gradually declines in virility and strength and becomes less able each year to combat the ills that naturally beset mankind. It is then the accumulated poisons in the blood make themselves manifest by rheumatic and other aches and pains in the joints, muscles and back.

People should heed these warning twinges and supply to the blood an acid solvent and stimulating tonic.

A prescription which has worked wonders for persons of declining physical vigor follows:

"One ounce Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris Compound; half pint of high grade whiskey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime. The bottle to be well shaken each time."

Although this is a very simple remedy, it will be found exceptionally effective, the good results becoming apparent after the first few doses. Toris compound is a product of the laboratories of the Globe Pharmaceutical Co., Chicago, but it as well as the other ingredients can be had from any good druggist.

$31,500 SUITS FOR INJURIES BY AUTOISTS

Six suits for amounts aggregating $31,500, growing out of automobile accidents, have been filed in Middlesex county. Edna Shattuck of Newton is sued for $10,000 damages by Edward Saunders of Waltham, who claims that on June 2, 1908, he was knocked down and injured on Newton street by her auto.

Horace E. Noyes of Lowell is sued for $5,000 by Mary Donovan of Somerville, who claims that on May 17, 1908, she was riding in an auto on the Somerville Fellsway and that she was thrown out and injured by the defendant's negligence in handling his car. Her husband sues Noyes for $1,500 on the grounds that he lost her services because of her injury.

VoViney Jacobs of Boston and Edward J. Bartlett of Needham are sued for $1,000 by Charles Shepard of Lowell, who claims that his car was smashed on the Lowell boulevard on September 7, 1908.

Charles H. Perkins of Boston has been sued by Greenville Anderson of Melrose for $5,000 for injuries he claims he sustained by being knocked down by the defendant's car at High and Summer streets, Boston.

William H. Poole of Belmont has been sued for $4,000 by John T. Bailey of Watertown, who is an Elevated road conductor and claims he was struck by the other man's automobile car when he got off his car.

Cheerful days—the days when you take Cascarets. Isn't it wonderful what a difference one little candy tablet makes?

We all need a laxative sometimes.

How often we need it depends entirely on how we live.

If we exercise largely, and eat the right food, we need a laxative only occasionally.

But if we live in-doors, and get too little laxative effect in our food, we may need to get it quite frequently in some other way.

Nobody can doubt the need for a laxative. The only question is: Which one is the best?

And that isn't a question now.

Cascarets are known to embody the only laxative which acts in a gentle and natural way.

Castor oil merely greases the bowels.

Cathartics and salts, acting as pepper acts in the nostrils, flush the bowels with fluids.

But those fluids are digestive juices, and we will lack them tomorrow if we waste them today.

Cascarets alone cause the muscles of the bowels to act the same as some foods will do.

Carry them with you. Take one when you need it. You will then enjoy all the good effects of keeping the bowels clean,

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50c, 25c and GAMES TO-DAY.

Philadelphia at Boston (two games).

The Detroits won the American League pennant yesterday by beating the White Sox. It was the hottest finish ever seen in a baseball championship race, with the single exception of the fight this season in the National League.

The Giants by beating the Doves yesterday took another step forward in their great stride to tie Chicago for the National League pennant.

If the Doves defeat the Giants in to-day's game and New York wins from Chicago in the play-off of the tie game, the standing of the New York, Chicago and Pittsburg teams will be:

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
New York	98	56	.636
Chicago	98	56	.636
Pittsburg	98	56	.636

If the Giants beat Boston in to-day's game then Pittsburg is absolutely out of it and the championship will be decided in the tie game play-off.

When Detroit played the White Sox yesterday they held a small lead. Their victory clinched their hold on the coveted flag. It was a game that meant everything to both teams.

When Detroit won there was a shout of jubilation from every fan in Michigan.

Heart-Breaking Finish.

The whole country has been watching the struggle in both big leagues with bated breath. There had been exciting finishes in both before, but never a time when so many clubs raced neck-and-neck to the wire.

The interest was not confined to the cities which had big league clubs. In every other city, town, village and hamlet in the land there was feverish curiosity to learn who would finally triumph in the greatest, most exciting and hard-fought finish ever known in the history of the national game.

The winning teams will reap a rich reward. There is a post-season series to be played between the National League and the American League champions for the championship of the world. Not only will there be glory galore attached to the world champions, but big money for the players as individuals.

It is estimated that each player who belongs to a club competing for the world's championship will get at least $1,500. He may get as much as $2,000.

Who will get the money?

When that question is answered the baseball season of 1908 will pass into oblivion.

And it has been the grandest the national game has ever known.

CHANCE FOR PIRATES IF GIANTS TIE

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 7.—The National League directors have decided that New York may enforce the playing off of the famous tied game of September 23 with the Chicago Cubs. In the event of a play-off the game will be on the Polo Grounds in New York to-morrow.

A strange situation results and further complicates the weird battle for the pennant of the National League. The spectacle of the three leading clubs of the National League—New York, Chicago and Pittsburg—all being tied for the pennant is possible, according to some.

Should New York lose one of the remaining games with the Boston Doves and then demand that the tie game with Chicago be played off on the Polo Grounds and on that game defeat Chicago, the games won and lost by each of the three leading clubs in the League would be 98 won, 56 lost, with a percentage of .637.

If the National Board of Directors view the tie game as one of the regular season's games and to be played off as one and not extraneous to the race of the year, Pittsburg would be tied with the leaders and could demand that it have a hand in the final contention.

Both of the games with the Doves won by the Giants and the capture of the tie game of September 23, replayed, with the Cubs would place New York high and dry pennant winners. But with one game lost to Boston the Giants must and will claim the privilege of playing off the tie with Chicago, and should she win that the three clubs will have been tied unless the National Board means that this tie is to be played as an extra season contest.

One thing is certain, the Giants and the Cubs will cross bats again this season on the Polo Grounds, and the hottest encounter in baseball history will be the result.

The umpires, when the game ended on the Polo grounds in the memorable riot when Bridwell made the winning base hit and when the mob swarmed over the field and both clubs demanded the game, declared it to be a tie.

At once both clubs appealed to President Harry Pullfam and he heard the stories of the umpires and sustained them, saying the game was a tie. Now the Board of Directors of the old league decides that the umpires and Pulliam were right and that the disputed game was a tie.

PIRATES HAVE DISBANDED FOR SEASON

PITTSBURG, Oct. 6.—Barney Dreyfus, owner of the Pittsburg team, threatens trouble if an effort is made to play off the New York-Chicago tie game, as permitted by the decision of the National League directors at Cincinnati. It is to be remembered that the Pittsburg team disbanded hastily at Chicago Sunday night, not stopping to consider the possible contingency which has since arisen that Pittsburg may yet tie with New York and Chicago for first place if that game is played off and won by New York. In part, he said:

"I can see neither sense nor fairness in that section of the ruling which says the game is to be played over if New York so desires. Under our own laws that game can never be played over, because our season closes to-day, and the rules, as I understand them, prohibit the playing of postponed or drawn games after that date. I shall protest against playing a game off out of season."

FOUR FOR M'DONALD.

Lon McDonald has four of the new 2:10 trotters to his credit—Amy Brooks, 2:05¼, Allen Winter, 2:08, Aquin, 4, 2:08½, and Marveletta, 2:09¼. Henry Titer, however, drove Aquin into the 2:10 list with a record of 2:09½.

CUBS LEAVE FOR NEW YORK TO SETTLE TIE

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The Chicago Club of the National League, which is leading in the race for the pennant, left here today for New York so that they will obtain a night's rest before the play off of the tie game with the Giants on Thursday.

Manager Chance intimated that he would assign Mordecai Brown to pitch against Mathewson. Chance criticised Charles H. Ebbetts of Brooklyn, for his action to-day in favoring New York's contention in the disputed game hearing.

Chance says Ebbett told his players before the last Chicago series that he wanted to see the Giants win the pennant.

"We will play them Thursday, and we'll lick 'em, too," said President Murphy of the Cubs. "We'll make it so decisive this time that no bone-headed base running can cast a shadow of doubt on the contest.

"Manager Chance and his players are all in good condition, and we will have no excuse if we fail to bring the third successive National League pennant to Chicago. The decision of the board of directors is a disappointment to the Chicago Club, as we felt the game was ours under the constitution.

"We will take our medicine, however, and be game, and I feel sure that the Cubs will again prove that they are the greatest team of ball players in the world."

AMATEURS FIGHT FAST IN ARMORY A. A. RING

The large crowd of members that turned out to witness the big amateur tournament at the Armory A. A. were well repaid, as nearly all of the bouts were of the high class. There were nineteen bouts in all including three special matches.

The best bout was the last one, the final in the 135 pound class, between Joe Burchell and Young Sanders. This was a whirlwind affair. Burchell had all the best of the first round, dropping Sanders with a hard right hook to the stomach and had him exceedingly groggy at the bell. But in the second round Sanders came back strong, sending Burchell to the mat with a terrific right swing to the jaw. The third round they stood and slugged in the centre of the ring until neither one was hardly able to stand, but Sanders had a shade the best of it and was awarded the decision. After being knocked clean off his feet by a left hook in the first round of the special bout in the 115 pound class Max Landy came back in the second round and made Joe Noble quit and was awarded the verdict.

The medal in the 125 pound class went to Max Baker of the South End as Eddie Daniels, who was to be his opponent in the final, was too sick to go on. Joe Trainor beat William Roach in one round in the 115 pound final. Summary:

CRACK DRIVERS IN BIG RACE ON SATURDAY

BY J. C. KERRISON.

There is now nothing to prevent those drivers who competed in the first race meet of the Motor Racing Association, which was unsanctioned, from driving cars in the sweepstakes at Long Island on Saturday next. The racing board of the American Automobile Association has voted that all such drivers, who promise to be real good in the future, may compete on Saturday. A liberal coat of whitewash was presented to each of the men who drove in the unsanctioned event. Perhaps it was as well that the racing board did as it has. It saved a good deal of trouble, perhaps a little fighting, and it can hardly be said that the powers that be in the A. A. A. are real good fighters on racing matters judging from past experiences.

The practice work for the sweepstakes was inaugurated yesterday morning, and according to reports there were some twenty-five cars on the course. No record time was recorded, every one seeming to be content with just jogging over the course, getting acquainted with the turns and the lay of the land. The sweepstakes promises to be the biggest thing in motor racing that has ever been held, the number of entries totalling thirty-three cars divided into five classes, and some really fast work should result.

The new four-cylinder Cadillac which arrived on Saturday is attracting no end of attention in the salesroom of Alvan T. Fuller in the Motor Mart. The new car is everything that was claimed for it, and the impression it is making upon the general public is one that will be lasting and impressive, as shown by the order books of Mr. Fuller, who said yesterday that he had already booked at least fifty orders for immediate delivery. The car and motor are admirably finished, and give one the impression of having been constructed with every attention to detail and finish.

Secretary Gardiner of the George N. Pierce Company has been spending a few days in town as the guest of J. W. Maguire. Mr. Gardiner has made several trips to the leading cities of New England looking over the field and getting in touch with matters in general. In speaking of the trade outlook yesterday he expressed the opinion that the coming year was going to be the greatest in the history of the industry. He sees a great future, and bases this idea on the great demands there are for the various lines of Pierce cars, which he naturally considers as the greatest line in the world.

The new Lozier, the direct counterpart of the car which in the twenty-four-hour contests at Brighton Beach track has been doing such great work, has arrived in town, and H. C. & C. D. Castle find themselves kept at concert pitch in demonstrating the same. The motor is as quiet as the proverbial sewing machine; in fact, more so, as it cannot be heard four feet away. She is a powerful looking proposition, and the record established by this car in the long-distance events proves conclusively that she is built for hard and continuous work.

LAWSON WINS GREAT RACE WITH DREAMWOLD PROEM

By ED. COGSWELL.

It was Arnold Lawson and his good trotting stallion Dreamwold Proem that were the sensational features at the Metropolitan Driving Club matinee at Charles River Speedway. It was the initial trip for both Mr. Lawson and the horse in the Fall series, and, in fact, Dreamwold Proem made his debut in speedway racing, though his owner is an old hand at the sport.

The Racing Committee had considered it just in placing Dreamwold Proem against Sid Axworthy, Tom Phair, Earl King and Alondra for a fair race to all, but now the event is concluded it is a safe wager that Mr. Lawson will no more have such soft material to mingle with.

While there was a stiff wind blowing in the faces of the racers, making the time of the heats fully a couple of seconds slower than usual, yet the representative of Dreamwold Farm won handily by six open lengths or more in 1:04¼ and 1:05.

Entered in $50,000 Derby.

Dreamwold Proem is five years old and has not been worked any too much in getting his speed. Along in the early Spring Mr. Lawson was heard to relate he had a pretty fair trotter down at the farm. When the closing of entries to the $50,000 American Trotting Derby was announced it was noticed that among the entries was Dreamwold Proem. Unfortunately, in the middle of the season he was taken with a set-back that caused his withdrawal as a starter in the big race. Soon after he was worked a little more, and Mr. Lawson brought him to Readville to take part in the matinees of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Boston.

Then at the intercity meeting between the Amateur Driving Club's League of America at Syracuse, when he started for the gold cup in a big field of horses, he surprised all by coming second in the final heat in 2:11¼. Experts predict he is one of the best prospects in the whole country for the slow stakes down the Grand Circuit in 1909.

Lawson to Quit the Turf.

With the good trotter Mr. Lawson has it is regretted by the matinee and speedway enthusiasts that he has decided to quit the sport and sell all of his horses at the Fall sale in New York. In both the Gentlemen's and Metropolitan Driving Clubs Mr. Lawson has always been a strong power, being a most willing worker for the good of the majority in every instance. It is thus with regret that his departure is learned.

In an interview he said the following regarding his giving up the racing and breeding of the light harness horses: "If Readville race track were to remain intact for the holding of meetings and the regular weekly Summer matinee racing, nothing on earth could cause me to forsake the turf. But Readville is doomed to pass under the auctioneer's hammer, and with it is also doomed to pass my stable of fun and breeding horses, as with Readville gone where is to be the Mecca for Boston horsemen to prepare and enjoy the good sport?

"I, personally, took off my coat and worked overtime to try and save Readville. When the $50,000 Derby was made it seemed to me that the salvation of Readville had been solved for future years. The last Grand Circuit meeting proved a failure, inasmuch, that it was a loser amounting to upwards of $10,000, the exact figures being some over $7,000. This means that with all of my labor in getting subscriptions in backing the meet, etc., were in vain. It has discouraged me so that I'm willing to drop not only the racing of horses, but the breeding of them as well, for what is the use?"

Billy Ross Won Clever Race.

But, to the speedway racing. Billy Ross, driven cleverly by that star of amateur reinsmen, W. J. Furbush, carried off the honors against Billy Wilkes and Cassandra. The opening heat was a dead one between the first two named in 1:10. Then Billy Wilkes landed the second in 1:08. Mr. Furbush now got in his work by capturing the third and fourth heats in 1:09 each. It was a pretty piece of driving that the Newton citizen accomplished with H. H. Cook's good gelding, and it brought forth a lot of merited praise.

W. J. McDonald, too, came into the limelight in winning with his trotting mare Talpa in 1:08¾, 1:09, but the cock of the walk in the Fellsway Driving Club races, Sir George, handled by his owner, J. I. Brooks, secured the first heat in 1:06¾, remarkably fast stepping for a horse nineteen years old.

Harry Bingen, C. S. Spencer up, headed the summary over Bingen Flower, Alclay II., and Martha G. Bingen Flower got the initial trip in 1:09, Harry Bingen the second and fourth in 1:09¾, 1:11, while Fred Garmon was in at the death of the third heat with Martha G. in 1:11¾. Mr. Garmon tried judging the race and driving and the result was he was left in the final heat through having sent his mare home after the third heat by believing Harry Bingen had won in place of himself.

The remaining winners were: Mona Maid (L. A. Beane) in 1:12; Toppan Boy (F. W. Dorr) in 1:09¾; Olive S. (W. A. Sexton), in 1:08¼; Jim Wood (E. J. Oullett), in 1:13, and Kalmesha (W. J. Furbush), in 1:15¼.

KELLY WILL WORK HARD FOR PAPKE

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—All arrangements having been completed in Milwaukee for the bout October 15 between Hugo Kelly of this city and Billy Papke, the middleweight champion, Bright and Zea, managers of the Milwaukee Boxing Club, which is promoting the contest, have made arrangements for Quinn and Welsh to handle the seat sale in this city. Bright telegraphed yesterday that the tickets would be placed with the Chicago firm this morning.

Chicago fight fans are much interested in this battle and the management has promised them the usual installment of choice locations at the ringside.

Hugo Kelly is anxious to trim his man in the third meeting and is already down to hard work. He put in a few hours yesterday at his new training camp and says he feels a much improved fighter. Kelly feels so confident that he can beat Papke this time that he is secretly collecting his coin and will plunge on his chances.

That this fight will be a great betting proposition goes without saying. Both men are very popular and have many backers.

The club has arranged a fine card of bouts for the show. Blink McCloskey of Boston has been matched to meet Jack Redmond of this city at 152 pounds and they will go eight rounds. Redmond has been out West for the past six months where he had several bouts and made good. McCloskey has a good Eastern record, having met Jack Blackburn, the colored whirlwind, and others of that class.

In addition the club has matched Jimmy Clabby with Fred Gilmore of Chicago at 138 pounds and the latter will have to prove himself near the top of the welterweight class if he beats Clabby.

JOHNSON MEANS TO FIGHT

BY W. W. NAUGHTON.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 7.—The following cablegram was received to-day:

LONDON, Oct. 6.—To Naughton, Examiner, San Francisco—Johnson left for Australia eighteenth fight Burns. (Signed) BETTINSON.

The foregoing sets at rest all questions as to Jack Johnson's movements and intentions. The cablegram is in reply to one asking information as to the way Johnson viewed the Australian offer of a match with Tommy Burns. Bettinson, who forwarded the reply, is the manager of the National Sporting Club of London, where Johnson and Sam Fitzpatrick made their headquarters when in England.

It is very evident that Burns and Johnson will box in Australia in December. That Johnson received satisfactory terms is manifest or he would not have taken passage for the antipodes.

Joe O'Connor, manager of young Ketchel, returned to San Francisco to-day. He left Ketchel in camp at Point Arena Hot Springs, sixteen miles distant from Point Arena, and says that the young fighter is enjoying himself hugely.

M'ALEER PEER OF RUBE'S TRAINERS

Jimmy McAleer has succeeded in taming "Rube" Waddell, something that no manager ever accomplished before.

When asked how he had succeeded in pulling off this supposedly impossible play, Jimmy said:

"I treat Waddell as I would wish to be treated myself, and I do not have the least bit of trouble with him. I find him to be a very willing fellow, and what he does he does in the open and allows all the world to know about it.

"There is absolutely nothing two-faced about George Edward. One of the finest points about him is that he does not sulk or nurse fancied grievances, like a good many star ball players I have known in my day. Men like this, while they wouldn't come out into the open and do things, would, by secret means, so demoralize a winning outfit as to eliminate it from the running.

"Waddell is a peculiar fellow, but the fans in every city pamper him, and it is not hard to find plausible excuses for some bad breaks the big fellow has made in the past. Personally, I very much like Rube, and consider him one of the best twirlers now in the game, and all this talk about managers having to humor George Edward is poppycock, for I find him tractable."

FAST GAME EXPECTED.

The Roxbury Athletics' football team has reorganized for the season of 1908 and will play their first game of the season against the fast team of the United States man-of-war Salem at the Columbus avenue playground Saturday, at 3 o'clock. This game will be for $25 a side, winner take all. The Athletics have not been defeated once in three years, and the Salem boys will have to go some to defeat them. Any fast team wishing to meet the Athletics may write to C. Murphy, No. 15 Newbourn street, Roxbury.

TRAINERS IN VAUDEVILLE A BIG FEATURE

Trainer R. W. Rosemire consented to sing for the entertainment of the audience at the Columbus race meeting on several afternoons, the band accompanying him. He sang well, too, and greatly pleased the crowd.

Walter Cox, who has a rare streak of humor, had some remarks to make anent Rosemire's entertainment. Said he: "Well, I knew it was coming to this. We horsemen have got to carry some sort of a side line in order to make people believe that we are up to something, and are able to give them their money's worth.

"Now wouldn't it be nice if Ed Geers and "Knap" McCarthy would do a few flip-flaps in front of the stand between heats; Dick McMahon and Tommy Murphy could put on a nice Irish knockabout stunt, and Charley Dean would make a hit with one of his violin selections. Yes, indeed, with George Castle to give us a few tips on this show scheme we can send a lot of alleged vaudeville stars back to their soda fountain jobs."

When Geers heard "Long Shot's" suggestions he had a good laugh, and even "Knap' sack," who is a very serious man, had to smile.

BOSTON HORSE HOLDS RECORD

The Boston trotter Uhlan's three heats in 2:07¼, 2:07¼, 2:08¼, are the best to the credit of any four-year-old trotter. He also displaces John Nolan and Boralma as champion gelding of his age. Only Directum, Ruth Dillon and Beuzetta ever went a faster mile in a race than Uhlan, but none ever approximated the average of Uhlan's miles up to the time he went his.

Then Ruth Dillon's three total a half second slower. Beuzetta's fastest three miles were 2:07½, 2:11¼ and 2:06¾, a total of nearly three seconds slower, while Directum's best were 2:10¾, 2:07¾, 2:08¾, just four seconds slower in the total. When Directum trotted in 2:05¼ his other miles were in 2:13¾ and 2:14.

ROWING AT ANNAPOLIS.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—Rowing practice at the Naval Academy for next season began to-day. Richard Glendon of the Boston Athletic Club, who has coached the midshipmen eight-oared crew for several years, arrived in Annapolis to-day. He will stay for about a month, working with the indoor rowing machines on the material in the new fourth class.

Of Course They Indorsed Ames

Why Not? Wasn't He a Good Republican?

When the Hon. Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell knows as much about the Democratic party in Massachusetts as he knows about rubber heels he will not be so excited over a little thing like the nomination of Butler Ames for Congress in a Democratic convention.

The Democratic delegates in Mr. O'Sullivan's district who indorsed the Republican candidate were merely carrying the past policy of the party to its logical conclusion.

For many years the Democrats in Massachusetts have acted as assistants to the Republican managers. The only time they have elected a candidate for Governor was when an anti-machine candidate was running on a Republican ticket. Then the Democrats turned in and HELPED THE MACHINE defeat the Republican Governor who had had the audacity to oppose it.

Thanks to the skilful management of such Democrats as W. A. Gaston and Josiah Quincy, the party has been kept in a permanent and hopeless minority. This enabled Mr. Gaston's trust friends to put through any trust measures they desired in the Legislature without fear of serious opposition. The "rank and file" of the party "workers" were glad to accept such crusts as fell from the tables of their masters, the Republicans.

It is going only one step further, then, for the Democrats to indorse the Republican candidate.

A Ticket with the Label On It

Nine of the sixteen electors on the Independence League ticket in Massachusetts are members of labor unions. One other elector, the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, is an eloquent defender of labor organizations. He is a fraternal delegate to the Central Labor Union of Haverhill. Mr. Sawyer may therefore be classed fairly as a "man with a union card."

Two of the candidates on the State ticket are union men in good standing.

Mr. Robert J. McCartney, the nominee for Lieutenant-Governor, was for eight years the official head of the Iron Moulders' Unions of New England. He resigned to go into business for himself, but he still works as an iron moulder and proudly retains his union membership.

John E. Dempsey, who is the candidate for auditor, is a member of the Central Labor Union of Fall River. Mr. Dempsey is one of the men who knows what it is to SUFFER in the cause of unionism.

Twenty-two men were nominated to go on the State ticket at the Independence League Convention in Faneuil Hall last Saturday. TWELVE OF THESE TWENTY-TWO MEN HAVE UNION CARDS.

At least 50 per cent. of the men who took part in the convention that made these nominations were members of labor unions.

The two old parties, OF COURSE, ignored the labor unions. The Independence League invited them into its councils, and they named their own men for office.

If the union men of the State "stand by the men with the union cards" they will stand by the ticket headed by Osgood and McCartney.

EDITORIAL

Where are the Democrats?—Evening World.

And, more important yet, where are the Dollar Democrats?

Will Democrats please refer to Mr. Bryan as the Peerless Leader only, and not as the Standard Bearer of his party? Recent developments prompt his enemies to allude to Mr. Bryan as the Standard (Oil) Bearer.

Congressman Nicholas Longworth says:

"I believe Mr. Taft should serve eight years as President. After that I consider that we should elect Mr. Roosevelt for eight years."

We can assure our readers that it's all one to Mr. Bryan. No matter who is elected, he will be a candidate in 1912, 1916, 1920, 1924, etc.

Tim Woodruff was stopped at the door of Republican headquarters. The doorkeeper did not recognize Mr. Woodruff, as his coat was buttoned.

For a kid State Oklahoma has managed to crowd rather closely the footlights.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

We wish newspapers would not refer to footlights—they may burn kerosene.

In Two Tongues.

This unspeakable incubus should be removed from the Democratic party. Bryan is an ignorant demagogue—raus mit him!—H. Ridder in Limburger Zeitung.

Send along your cheque for $1,000 and help elect Bryan, the hope of the Democratic party and meinself.—H. Ridder, in English.

RIDDER DEFENDED

Career of Piece of Cheese Held Up for Admiration

By the Editor.

Josephus Daniels, chief blue-penciller of the Eastern press, says in the October Review of Reviews:

"Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahoma * * * was made treasurer of the National Campaign Committee at the suggestion of Mr. Bryan because of his ability in devising and working out plans for raising money * * *."

Very true, indeed, but written, of course, before Governor Haskell's voluntary resignation from the office. The same words might be used of his successor, however, Herman Ridder, sometimes affectionately called the Piece of Cheese.

The Piece of Cheese has been criticised for changing his political allegiance so frequently. We cannot see anything to criticise in this, especially if he had anything to gain by it. We have ourselves found it convenient to forget a lot of principles. We try to guess what the people want and then advocate it.

Our opinions of organized labor are the same.

On former occasions, we are informed, the Piece of Cheese has attacked us in the columns of his paper. So have Henry Watterson and Joseph Pulitzer, but we've got them all working for us.

And after we're elected, we shall give them—what? Ah, wait and see.

Mr. Bryan Exonerated

That Mr. Bryan never called workingmen "public beggars" is amply proved by the following affidavits:

KAISER WILHELM—I never heard Mr. Bryan call workingmen "public beggars" yet. Nor Mr. Ridder neither.

KING EDWARD—Bryan's a deuced fine chap, but I didn't hear his advanced views on the bally laborers.

THE SULTAN OF TURKEY—I never heard Bryan say anything.

DEAF MUTE—I didn't hear the expression used.

LETTERS

To the Editor—If elected to the Presidency, will Haskell or the Piece of Cheese be made Secretary of the Treasury?

VOTER.

[Either Mr. Ridder or Governor Haskell would make an excellent Secretary of the Treasury, but we cannot name one or the other until the election is over.—Ed.]

To the Editor—I met Colonel Guffey of Pennsylvania to-day and he was weeping bitterly over the retirement of Governor Haskell.

FATHER PENN.

[Colonel Guffey is almost too kind hearted. We understand he is going to subscribe $1,500,000 to our campaign fund.—Ed.]

To the Editor—If you have any letters of mine, for heaven's sake burn them.

CHARLES N. HASKELL.

[We did that long ago.—Ed.]

To the Editor—How is it you have no such melodious songs on your side as "Get on the Raft with Taft." Why not get up something like "I'm Dyin' with Bryan"? TENOR.

[Not cheerful enough. You should hear Ham P. Bee rouse the Oklahoma echoes with "Good-by, Haskell, Good-by," "Ridder's Only a Piece of Cheese, but His Record's Mighty Strong" and "Vote for the Candidate You're Used To."—Ed.]

To the Editor—Whom is the Still Commoner supporting? ENQUIRER.

[The Editor's brother.—Ed.]

The Art of Listening

Too Many Women Fail to Realize How Highly Polite Attention Is Appreciated by Men

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

THERE is no accomplishment which a young woman possesses more pleasing than the art of listening with attention.

It is possible of attainment by all. Yet how few possess it.

Brain scattering and mind wandering is the evil of the day.

The hurry and rush and noise and blare of modern times is not conducive to quiet conversation.

Telephones have become a necessity of the home life of the day. But they are persistent in their interference with continuity of thought, with polite attention, and with concentration. They even interfere with the repose which should attend the meal hour; and they wake us from our first and last nap, night and morning, with an imperative "long distance call."

The tales of the Arabian Nights could never have been related had the telephone existed.

Art Can Be Cultivated

Yet with all these drawbacks, it is possible to cultivate the art of listening well, if we set our minds upon that accomplishment; and to do this we must realize its importance.

A very stupid girl, so far as intellectual attainments is concerned, and a girl who possessed neither beauty nor accomplishments, married a brilliant and attractive man. She won him simply by her interested manner of listening.

When he talked to a bevy of people where she was present, he was sure to find one face full of interest, and to receive some response to his words, or a laugh at the right moment when he was humorous; and never once by inattention or mind wandering did she make it necessary for him to repeat himself.

Better Than Beauty

It proved more compelling to this man than the beauty and accomplishment which other women cast at his feet.

There is no more mortifying situation for any one who is trying to tell a story or relate a fact than to find the eyes of the assembled company, whether one person or a dozen, wandering, and the attention distracted by outside sounds.

I have seen a woman who was beautiful and charming, and who prided herself upon being an excellent hostess, place her guests in this humiliating position again and again. In the midst of an anecdote or narrative her eyes, which had been wandering everywhere save toward the speaker's face, would turn with a blind gaze, as she made some inappropriate remark, or requested the speaker to begin over, as the trend of the story had escaped her.

Sure Road to Popularity

The best told tale falls flat when such an interruption occurs. Men love to be paid the polite attention of listening when they talk.

The very first accomplishment for a woman who has hopes to be popular with the sterner sex is, therefore, to learn how to listen.

Listen with the eyes, with the poise of the head, with the tactful and timely word or laugh, and with the concentration of the whole thing.

When you cannot do this, leave the room if some one is speaking.

A restless-eyed, nervous and inattentive presence would destroy the eloquence of a Demosthenes.
